

20mph zones among measures to boost safety

SPEED LIMIT TO PROTECT PUPILS

Report by Dayna Farrington

NEW 20mph speed limits are set to be rolled out across Dudley borough under plans to improve safety outside of schools.

The new zones will be introduced at 11 schools in Dudley, Sedgley, Stourbridge, Brierley Hill and Halesowen, if the plans are backed by council bosses.

It could also see other traffic management schemes introduced, including new zebra crossings and widened pavements.

Dudley Council's cabinet member for environmental services, Councillor Karen Shakespeare, said the speed limits were part of a programme to improve safety.

The 20mph would only operate during school drop-off and pick-up times.

They are set to be introduced outside Halesbury School, Hurst Green Primary, Ham Dingle Primary, Fairhaven Primary, Peters Hill Primary, Cotwall End Primary, Colley Lane Primary, Earls High, Tenterfields Primary, Bishop Milner Catholic High, St Joseph's RC Primary and Leasowes Community College.

Programme

Councillor Shakespeare said: "As part of our programme to improve safety on our streets, the 20mph zones are among a number of measures being introduced outside school gates."

"All schools across the borough have been assessed and work prioritised. Residents will be consulted on our proposals and the council will work to introduce the schemes as quickly as possible."

The proposed programmes include specific provisions to benefit pedestrians and the mobility of the less able, as well as measures to improve access for young people to schools.

TRIBUTE TO WOMEN WHO STARTED CHAIN REACTION

Rousing the 'women slaves of the forge', Mary Macarthur's address to the strikers is recreated as part of the Women Chainmakers' Festival

ACTORS took visitors back in time to a historic struggle fought by women in the Black Country for a minimum wage.

The scene in Cradley Heath High Street was turned back to 1910 when actors dressed in Edwardian clothes and carrying protest signs at the Women Chainmakers' Festival on Saturday recreated one of the meetings when the women were addressed by firebrand Scottish Suffragist campaigner and trade unionist Mary Macarthur.

The family friendly festival organised by the Midlands TUC celebrated the role of the women in struggling for a decent wage, marking a key moment in women's and Labour history.

The group stood up for their right to earn a living wage led by the founder of the National Federation of Women Workers, Mary Macarthur. Their 10-week strike successfully established the right to a minimum wage.

Families enjoyed market stalls, fun fair rides, speeches, street theatre, music and debate at the festival.

There was also a trade union banner parade. The event was held as part of the Black Country Festival.

POLICE

Bus cleared due to fear of explosion

PASSENGERS travelling on a bus in Dudley were forced to get off after concerns there could be an explosive on board.

Police received a 999 call on Saturday morning from a staff member at Dudley bus station in Fisher Street. A driver had raised concerns about a man who boarded a bus that morning in Lye Cross.

The bus was evacuated and checked by a police sniffer dog but nothing suspicious was detected.

It is understood that the man in question had got off the bus before police were contacted.

EVENTS

Wiggle over for fun in town centre

CELEBRATIONS for Black Country Day take place in Dudley town centre on Saturday. There will be a family fun day with the revival of the traditional coffin race, which refers to an historic incident at Dudley Castle, and an appearance by Britain's Got Talent 'Wiggle Wine' singer Donchez Dacres. It's the same day as Wordsley Festival, plus events in Shell Corner and Old Hill.

'Greedy' cleaner fails over jail appeal

Veronica Susan Robinson

A CROOKED cleaner who took advantage of a 93-year-old war veteran, plundering 'hundreds of thousands of pounds' from his bank account, has been told her jail term is not a day too long.

'Insatiably greedy' Veronica Susan Robinson, 62, began cleaning the house of a blind Second World War veteran in 2013, tLondon's Appeal Court heard. She 'excluded' his family and neighbours, who had previously helped care for him at his home in Halesowen. Then, after 'grooming' her wealthy victim, she manipulated him into paying for a £190,000 house for her and went on to further raid his bank account.

She then falsified a document put before a court, in a bid to cover her tracks after her fraud was discovered.

Robinson, whose address was given as High Haden Road, Cradley Heath, was convicted of fraud and perverting the course of justice and she was locked up for five-and-a-half years at Wolverhampton Crown Court in March last year.

This week at London's Appeal Court, she asked Mr Justice Green to cut her jail term, claiming she was treated too harshly. But the judge refused her application, saying she had abused a vulnerable man.

Justice Green said: "She isolated him from neighbours and relatives and began drawing out money, much of which was transferred into her pocket. She took advantage of her good fortune in meeting a wealthy but vulnerable man. She had no intention of protecting him. The intention was to abuse her self-appointed carer's position to swindle him out of his life savings. She was an unprincipled opportunist, motivated by insatiable greed."

Council in balance after Tory defects to Labour

THE leadership of Dudley Council hangs in the balance after a Conservative councillor defected to the opposition.

Norton Councillor Mike Attwood made the decision to switch to the Labour group at a meeting last Thursday and his change in allegiance has led to a power battle at the local authority.

The move means the Labour group holds the majority with 36 councillors compared to the 'Tories' 35 councillors and one independent.

Conservative council leader Patrick Harley called Councillor Attwood's decision 'disgraceful' and said a by-election should be held. Labour leader Pete Lowe said his party would be submitting a motion of no confidence at October's full council meeting. For now, the council will go on its summer recess.

Councillor Attwood said: "Conservative-run Dudley Council is doing nothing to stand up for the people I represent."

"I have been left bitterly disappointed in equal measure by the untenable plan and poor decisions Councillor Harley and his team have made in Dudley."

Reject

"I felt my colleagues were not supporting my work and my role, so I made the difficult decision to switch. I will carry on working with my constituents and I see no reason why I should not continue to do that. I reject his statement for a by-election."

Councillor Harley said: "What he has done is disgraceful. If he had any decency he would call a by-election and stand for election under his new party."

"We are still confident of making more gains. Labour have been in decline in the area. I think it will all end in tears."

Laura's floral designs win national title

Laura Leong with the Florist of the Year 2018 Trophy which she won at the RHS Hampton Court Palace Flower Show

A STOURBRIDGE florist has been crowned florist of the year.

Laura Leong, 46, of The Flower Basket in Market Street, competed at the RHS Hampton Court Palace Flower Show and won. Laura has been a florist for 30 years, it was the first time she had entered this prestigious competition.

As winner, Laura will now represent the UK and Ireland in the USA at the Interflora World Cup at the Philadelphia Flower Show in 2019.

Laura had to, in front of a live audience, create floral items, a floral parasol and a table decoration in just 90 minutes. Along with a gift arrangement including a bottle and a picnic basket. She was awarded top marks for her floral parasol and picnic basket, with comments complimenting her eye for detail and workmanship.

"When I read the brief I was drawn to the idea of a country garden and this is what inspired my pieces - those lazy, hazy days of summer," said a clearly delighted Laura, who punched the air when the results were announced. "I'm delighted to have won. I wanted to come here and prove to myself that I could take the title and I couldn't be happier to have done it."

The competition has been running for 60 years with the title seen as a premier accolade within the industry. Interflora director Nick Priest said: "Florist of the Year is about celebrating creativity, passion, flair and design skills."

Sunshine and footy keep carnival spirit going

THOUSANDS turned out to bask in summer sunshine at carnivals in Stourbridge and Halesowen.

Fun fairs, parades, dancing and live music, wrestling, wild bird displays and a street market were just some of the attractions on offer, though thousands made sure they were near a TV screen for Saturday's England match.

Halesowen Carnival took place at Highfields Park on Saturday, with Stourbridge Carnival in the High Street and town centre on Sunday. Both were part of the month-long Black Country Festival, with more events during July.

Mayor of Dudley Councillor Alan Taylor said: "Both carnivals were absolutely fantastic events. It was lovely to see so many families out enjoying the sunshine. The organisers did a brilliant job in both Stourbridge and Halesowen. I'm really looking forward to seeing the festivities continue throughout the month, and am particularly looking forward to the celebrations in Dudley town centre on Black Country Day itself on Saturday."

The Black Country Festival, now in its fifth year, promises to be the biggest and best yet. From 10am to 5pm, the family fun day in Dudley will focus on Stone Street Square.

Inca is bear-ing up very well at 38

DUDLEY Zoo's black bear Inca - thought to be the oldest in the world - is doing un-bear-licably well after sailing through her annual health check.

As the oldest Asiatic black bear on zoo records worldwide, at the age of 38, astounding Inca underwent her yearly medical with zoo vets Peter Stewart and Cristian Segura Cortijos a couple of weeks ago and her results have come back clear.

Curator Richard Brown, who assisted the vets, said: "Inca is doing incredibly well for an old girl and has exceeded the life span of a wild Asiatic black bear by well over a decade."

Inca goes into semi-hibernation, in her den between around November and March but has been known to make an appearance on a mild winter's day.

Fresh doubt over store at Merry Hill centre

FRESH doubt has been cast over the future of a Mothercare store at the Merry Hill shopping centre.

It is part of a Mothercare subsidiary called Children's World, made up of 22 stores which the company has now put into administration as part of its radical bail-out plan.

It aims to close nine of the shops but refuses to say which are affected.

The move now means a total of 60 Mothercare outlets will be shut by June next year, putting 900 jobs at risk. That already includes stores in Stafford and Walsall, where around 30 people work.

The retailer said 13 of the Children's World 22 stores, which all together employ 336 people, would be saved. It is thought the nine closures will add around 100 to the jobs toll.

Mothercare bought Children's World from Boots in January 1996 and re-branded all of its superstores as Mothercare World, including the outlet at the Merry Hill retail park, off Pedmore Road, Brierley Hill.

The changes come after Mothercare cleared a restructuring plan known as a Company Voluntary Agreement, an insolvency procedure that required the approval of the retailer's landlords.

The group has also managed to raise £32.5 million from its existing shareholders.

Quad bike rider rescued after fall

A QUAD biker rider aged in his 60s suffered serious injuries after falling 20ft down a steep embankment in Rowley Regis.

The man was found on land off Moor Lane, near Rowley Regis Hospital, on Thursday afternoon. Specialist paramedics and the Midlands Air Ambulance was called to the scene at around 4.50pm.

West Midlands Ambulance Service spokeswoman Claire Brown said: the man had sustained potentially serious injuries and due to his precarious position on the steep slope had to be placed on a specialist stretcher.

He was lifted up the slope using ropes with the support of firefighters and taken to Birmingham's Queen Elizabeth Hospital for treatment.

St John base shuts

THE St John Ambulance centre in Brierley Hill has closed after 125 years with members holding a farewell event at the Bent Street base. The centre was closed following a property review by the organisation.

200 jobs face axe at shop fitting firm

MORE than 200 jobs at one of the Black Country's biggest firms are to be axed as the business suffers from the impact of online shopping on traditional retail.

Shop fittings specialists The Alan Nuttall Partnership view the move – the second round of redundancies it has made in four months – as necessary to secure the firm's future.

Chairman Alan Nuttall said he was 'devastated' at taking the action, which was aimed at refocusing on the profitable parts of the business.

The redundancies will be spread across the company's two sites – at Hall Street, Dudley, and Hinckley in Leicestershire. The company employs more than 500 people.

Employees were told in personal emails to staff on Friday.

One Dudley worker who asked not to be named said: "Some people have spent all their lives at the company after starting there as apprentices. It's heartbreaking."

"Nuttalls was such a big employer. I don't think people understand the implications of this."

Clients

The company produces interiors and display units, from design through to manufacture and installation, for clients such as M&S, Morrisons, Asda, Homebase, Costa, Nike, Sainsbury's and Dunkin Donuts.

In his letter, the chairman said the business as a whole had made 'considerable losses' over the past two years which it could not continue to sustain.

It comes after axing 84 jobs earlier this year. Managing director Nino Calandra said: "We have invested time and resource to try and move into new sectors to reduce our dependence on the retail sector but sadly this doesn't happen overnight, although we hope we will see the benefits of these actions in the near future."

He described the growth of online shopping as seemingly 'virtually unstoppable'.

Mr Calandra added: "Sadly we have no option. We need to do this to live to fight another day."

Park turned pink as runners raise £123k

IT was a sea of pink as more than 1,700 people gathered at Himley Park to race in aid of charity, raising more than £123,000 for Cancer Research UK in the Race For Life event on Sunday.

Many of those tackling the course were out to remember lost loved ones – including Diane Greaves, 54, from Stafford, who was taking part in memory of her late mother Cilla Ingham who died in 2003, aged 67, from cancer.

Diane said: "Fifteen years ago today my mom passed away, she had pancreatic cancer. My sister and my brother are here, my daughters are here and my nieces, my sister-in-law, we just want to give something back, we want to fight and we want to kick cancer's butt."

"We do this today, Pretty Muddy next week and we volunteer. We have called this Granny's Gang and everyone has done an individual bit to raise some money."

Cure

"Fifteen years ago there wasn't the same drugs around as there are today, more people are actually living and fighting cancer today and lets hope in another fifteen years they can even more. That is what it is about. The more people give, the quicker we will find a cure."

There was an overspill of joy from England's triumph over Sweden on Saturday too as Heart FM's Ed James roused the crowd during their warm up with classic Three Lions song, which features the Black Country's Frank Skinner.

Event manager Kirsten Greaves labelled the Dudley fundraisers 'incredible' and said: "It is absolutely amazing. The people of Dudley are just incredible, they do so much fundraising, they go that extra mile and its vital for research."

"There is something really special about Race For Life. When you see everyone's signs and the messages to their loved ones – not one person here hasn't been touched by cancer. They have lost loved ones, family, friends, colleagues and it is the most special, overwhelming feeling and you cannot help but be touched. Last year in the Midlands we spent £11 million on research and we simply could not do that without the support."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Pair sought after screws scattered

POLICE are appealing for help in identifying these two people they want to speak with in connection with screws being scattered on car parks in Stourbridge.

Dudley Police issued the image of a man and a woman they think might have information in relation to the incidents in which screws have been left on car parks around Mary Stevens Park, posing a potential hazard for motorists.

A spokesman for the force said: "There have been a number of occasions over recent weeks when screws have been scattered and damage has been caused to cars belonging to staff and visitors at the park. We think they may be able to help us understand why screws have been strewn around the car parks."

Call West Midlands Police on 101, quoting incident number 769 of June 8.

Britons hiding up to £69bn in debts

NEW research suggests 16 per cent of people in the UK have debts they have hidden from their partner. Direct Line Life Insurance says an estimated 8.3 million Brits are hiding more than £69 billion of debt from loved ones.

Direct Line says the average debt hidden from a partner in the UK is £8,293, which would take about 15 weeks for the average Brit to pay off, even if committing their entire earnings to clearing the debt.

The largest number of hidden debts are on credit cards with 5.6m Brits owing an average of £2,109, or cumulatively £11.7bn, their partner doesn't know about.

The region's motorists were paying 128.4p a litre (£5.83 a gallon) compared to the UK average of 128.8p (£5.85). Diesel was 131.2p per litre (£5.96) against the national figure of 131.7p (£5.98).

Nationally average unleaded prices were up 3.3p per litre and diesel by 3.4p on the month.

The South East has recorded the highest prices for unleaded at 129.5p per litre and diesel at 132.4p.

Detectives are to review Ryan case

THE stabbing of a footballer in a nightclub is being reviewed by detectives after a man accused of his murder was cleared by a jury.

Ryan Passey died from a knife wound after an argument broke out in Chicago's in Stourbridge town centre last August.

In February, Kobe Murray was found not guilty of the murder and manslaughter of the 24-year-old following a two-week trial at Birmingham Crown Court. Mr Murray admitted stabbing Ryan, but said it was an accident.

West Midlands Police last week confirmed it was reviewing the case.

A spokeswoman said: "We are in the process of conducting a review of this case and will continue to follow any positive lines of enquiry, discussing all options with the Crown Prosecution Service. We maintain regular contact with the family of Ryan Passey providing updates on the enquiry, answering any questions and offering support."

The jury's verdict led to a campaign by the family of Ryan and family friend Jason Connon calling for a changed in the law changed to enable victims and their families to appeal against jury decisions.

Stoubridge MP Margot James has supported them. After the case the Conservative MP wrote to the Attorney General on the matter. The office has since replied, saying it will also look back over the case.

Ms James said: "I am continuing to work with Ryan's family and Jason Connon to provide any help I can in their campaign to see that justice is done for Ryan."

Bed-blocking figures are best in five years

By Dayna Farrington

BED-BLOCKING has been drastically cut to its lowest level in five years in part of the Black Country, new figures show.

Last year Dudley Council was awarded £13.9 million from the Government's Improved Better Care Fund to spend over three years to tackle some of the most pressing issues in health and adult social care.

In the first year, the council committed to spending £7m introducing measures to support older people to leave hospital, or a 'step-down' setting – typically a bed in a care home – as soon as they are medically fit.

It has already had the desired impact with a noticeable reduction in the number of cases of delayed transfer of care, known as bed blocking, with beds being freed up quicker for those who need them most.

Impact

Figures show that there was only one case of delayed transfer compared to more than 400 in August last year – and only 12 from 'step-down' settings compared to more than 100 in August last year.

Councillor Nicolas Barlow, cabinet member for adult social care, said: "Thanks to this investment we have introduced a raft of measures that are having a big impact on our health and social care services."

"We are now in a better position to move people through the system and discharge them from hospital or a step-down setting when they are at their strongest and their independence is at its peak."

"Not only is this giving the patient a much better experience but it's also freeing up much-needed beds in our hospital and step-down settings."

Some fin fishy about these factory workers

Former EastEnders Cheryl Ferguson, right, Emma Rigby, Roisin O'Neill, Deena Payne and keeper Jess Jones

FAMOUS faces from TV soaps soaked up the sun as they took a tour of Dudley Zoo dressed up as fish factory workers, ahead of their appearance of a new comedy show coming to Wolverhampton Grand Theatre.

Cheryl Ferguson, best known for playing Heather in EastEnders, joined Emmerdale actress Deena Payne, Emma Rigby from Prisoners Wives, and Roisin O'Neill as they fed penguins during a visit to the zoo. They are the stars of Ladies' Day, which is running at the Grand Theatre from tonight (Friday) for two weeks.

It follows the adventures of fish factory workers during a day at the races. The show also features singer and actor Tony Christie, who is best known for his recording of Is This the Way to Amarillo?

Cheryl and co took time out of rehearsals to enjoy an ice-cream on the zoo's Ow Bin Ya Sands summer attraction and also got to practice the Black Country accent.

After feeding the penguins, Cheryl said: "It's been such a fun thing to do while we are getting ready for the production and good to see where some of our fish might end up."

Ladies' Day is written by Amanda Whittington and the Grand's production will feature more than 20 local actors.

Poor hygiene costs businesses £44k

EIGHT businesses across Dudley have been fined a total of nearly £44,000 for breaching food and hygiene standards following swoops by environmental health officers over the past year.

At the same time, Dudley Council officers also helped destroy hundreds of tons of meat. The destruction was part of an investigation by the Food Standards Agency into a meat processor, which operated on sites across the country.

A report to council reveals council officers took eight business to court for breaking food regulations during the same year resulting in fines of £43,870.

Of the eight convictions, the largest fine was £18,000 for breaching food and hygiene rules.

Atten-shun! Hospital to call on army experience

HOSPITALS in Dudley are asking the army to 'fall in' and help it recruit staff.

The Dudley Group NHS Foundation Trust is looking to its local Army Reserves Centres to see if it can attract ex-military personnel and reservists with the right skills to Russells Hall Hospital, Dudley Guest Outpatient Centre and the Corbett Outpatient Centre in Stourbridge.

The trust has already been invited to attend a recruitment event at an Army Reserve Centre and now hopes it can run similar events in the future.

This year 81 student nurses are due to begin work with the trust in September but the high number of new entrants is causing worries about the balance of skills and experience.

A report to health bosses states: "These high numbers of student nurses and relatively few experienced nurses being recruited is now cause for concern in some areas.

"There are certain clinical areas that are attracting high numbers of newly qualified nurses - emergency department, community, coronary care, theatres and critical care - and these specialities are finding it difficult to support this skill mix."

The trust says it's planning to increase support it gives new recruits and is looking to train clinical support workers, who qualified as nurses in another country.

Store stops sales of kitchen knives

POUNDLAND has stopped selling kitchen knives at all of its West Midlands stores following a series of stabbings across the region.

The discount retailer said the decision to take knives off the shelves of 59 shops was in response to 'colleague and community concern'.

Keelan Wilson, aged 15, was stabbed to death in Merry Hill, Wolverhampton, in May. James Brindley, 26, was killed as he walked home from a night out in Aldridge last year and 24-year-old Ryan Passey died from a knife wound in Chicago's nightclub, Stourbridge.

Poundland retail director Austin Cooke said: "In the wrong hands, knives can be used for the wrong purpose."

Rest days cancelled to protect Trump

Donald Trump - big protests anticipated

AROUND 1,000 rest days have been cancelled so West Midlands Police can send officers to London for Donald Trump's visit, which is due to start today (Thursday).

Up to 400 officers from the region are being dispatched to the nation's capital to deal with potential unrest, with the US President expected to be greeted by thousands of protesters.

West Midlands Police and Crime Commissioner David Jamieson has warned that providing support to the Met Police will have a 'major impact' on policing in the West Midlands.

He argued that funding cuts had left the force with 'no capacity' to support such operations. Some of the officers will be stationed in London for three days.

"I am extremely worried that our force is being put under a significant amount of pressure by being asked to help with national events, like President Trump's visit," said Commissioner Jamieson.

"It is right that world leaders are able to safely visit the UK. The problem is that cuts have left the force with no capacity.

"It means when it is asked to help it has a hugely negative impact on policing in our area as officers rightly take days off to recover.

"Not so long ago the force had 2,100 more officers which meant we had the capacity to manage when called on to police national events. Sadly cuts mean the thin blue line is thinner than ever."

A 'Stop Trump' protest has been organised in London for tomorrow (Friday) with groups of demonstrators set to travel from all over the country to take part.

Transgender children to help train school staff

TRANSGENDER children will talk to teachers and healthcare professionals about the challenges they face in schools in a bid to increase understanding of the issue.

The taxpayer-funded training will see three teenagers deliver classes in Dudley to raise awareness of the support required by transgender youngsters.

Session one is aimed at school staff, including teachers and school nurses, who will be told how it feels to be a transgender young person. A further session will be run for youth and social workers, who come in contact with transgender children out of school.

It is being organised by the Transgender Inclusive Schools Project (TISP), which is one of the first schemes of its kind in the country to focus on the needs of gender non-conforming teenagers.

Council bosses have hailed the training as a step towards a more tolerant and inclusive society. However, West Midlands MEP Bill Etheridge says it is 'pandering to the politically correct brigade'.

Professionals

Mr Etheridge, a former UKIP councillor in Dudley, said: "What training exactly have these young people had that allows them to lecture professionals who have spent many years training to get where they are now? More to the point, how can these individuals be so certain of their gender and sexuality as they are still in the adolescent phase? This kind of thing is pandering to the politically correct brigade and is an appalling use of tax-payers money."

Dudley Council leader Patrick Harley defended the training and said it could be extremely valuable.

"Bill's criticism of this shows exactly why he has always been on the political fringes," said the Conservative councillor for Kingswinford South. "Times are changing and as a society we have to be more tolerant and inclusive towards all people. If this training can help young people, and indeed help staff to better understand what is going on, then we should welcome it."

No easy ride into retirement

Ian and Christabel Harper aim to be the eldest couple to ride the full length of the Pacific Coast Highway

A HUSBAND and wife are attempting a new world record by driving 30,000 miles along the longest road in the world on a pair of motorbikes.

Ian and Christabel Harper want to enter the Guinness World Records as the oldest husband and wife team, in a combined age, to ride from Alaska to Argentina using two motorbikes along the Pacific Coast Highway. The couple, aged 54 and 60, from Stourbridge, will set off later this month and aim to raise £10,000 for mental health charity Mind.

Mr Harper said it should take them around six to seven months.

He added: "We a really wanted to have a go, it's been on my bucket list. Christabel is retiring as a teacher (from Harborne Academy), so instead of heading off to relax - she's doing this."

ONLINE food ordering app Uber Eats has expanded into the Black Country.

The app allows people to order food to be delivered to their door from restaurants and takeaways, between 8am and midnight seven days a week.

Toussaint Wattinne, the general manager of Uber Eats in the UK, said: "We have been blown away with how popular the app has been in Birmingham, so we're really excited to be expanding further into Stourbridge, Kingswinford and Brierley Hill."

The app, downloadable from the App Store and Google Play, uses the same cashless system that Uber taxi app users will be familiar with and is partnered with many leading restaurant chains.

Not really a sharp move by chiefs at Poundland

SOME things defy belief. The Black Country based discount chain Poundland has announced it will stop selling kitchen knives by autumn over concerns about knife crime. Certainly knife crime is a serious matter, but will this really help?

Presuming that we are still going to be allowed to eat in 21st century Britain, then people are going to need kitchen knives. Not just gangsters and hoodlums, but ordinary people too, for cutting up food and things like that. We all need them.

Maybe this is the beginning of a sea-change in the way we buy household cutlery. Perhaps in future people will have to provide ID and register their details with the local police station before buying a bread knife or a butter spreader. But that wouldn't work as most of our police stations have closed.

Hopefully, other retailers will take a more pragmatic approach, and continue to stock kitchen knives, meaning we can continue to eat food without having to tear it apart like wild beasts. But that means the bad guys will still be able buy knives as well, just from different retailers.

Now, I'm all in favour of banning these horrible combat and "zombie" knives which cause so much misery, but kitchen knives? Really?

As far as I can see, there are two explanations. The one is that Poundland believes its customers are more likely to be involved in crime than the much nicer people who buy their knives elsewhere. The other is that it's just a bit of hollow virtue-signalling.

MEANWHILE, Sandwell Council has come up with an innovative approach to tackling speeding drivers.

Motorists caught speeding outside Hamstead Junior School in Great Barr were given the choice of paying a fine, or being lectured by a group of 11-year-olds. Personally, I don't think this goes far enough. Why not do it properly and stick them in stocks in the playground, so the kids can throw school dinners at them?

While speeding outside a school is clearly irresponsible, this does seem a rather immature response. Two questions spring to mind: How much had the teachers 'coached' the children in what to say to the drivers, and what time did the transgressions occur? The worst offender was clocked at 35mph, which might well be dangerous when hundreds of children are crossing the road, but far less so when they are safely tucked away in assembly. Incidentally, Hamstead Junior School recently suspended two pupils for bringing 'large knives' into school. Maybe it has bigger things to worry about?

Grommets – and what we hear about them now

NHS founder Aneurin Bevan – spell-check for "Aneurin" suggests "unerring"

Monty Don – count the trowels hanging on the wall. There are nine of them

Tony Hancock – the forgotten comedian? But that's the way fame goes

'Miracle cure' that is now deemed risky

THE list of 17 procedures to be rationed by the NHS include ear grommets. I recall a persistent rumour from years ago that grommets, to fix a mysterious condition called glue ear, had been introduced chiefly to provide employment for ENT (ear, nose and throat) consultants who no longer removed adenoids or tonsils. We were told that grommets were a miracle cure. Now we are told they are among the procedures deemed unnecessary, ineffective or risky. Very odd.

AFTER a recent item on the obesity issue in Tredegar, home town of the NHS founder Aneurin Bevan, a reader suggests the NHS could launch fight-the-flab walking classes, to be named Tread Eager. Fans of Bevan will not be surprised that my computer spell-check for "Aneurin" suggests "unerring."

A COMMONS committee warns MPs that using Twitter is like "dipping their private parts in honey and exposing them to angry bees." Oh, please don't put ideas into their heads.

STILL dithering over having a tattoo? A heat-wave reveals millions of them, on show from dawn to bedtime, and the ravages of the years. Those once-pert rosebuds on a shoulder now look like enormous tumours and those elegant lizards on the leg are doing a fine impression of varicose veins. Think on.

THE RSPCA is among organisations which called for a sky-lantern festival in the tinder-dry Peak District to be cancelled. While they are at it, they might ask the organisers to tone down the advertising. In its publicity bumf, The Lights Fest invokes the words of Martin Luther King: "Darkness cannot drive out darkness: only light can do that." I'm not entirely sure the US civil-rights legend was talking about flying naked flames over moorland in high summer. But, hey, why stop the advertising slogans at Dr King? Jesus said all sorts of stuff about light. Get Him on the posters, too.

GOOD old Auntie Beeb. England beat Colombia, the nation rejoiced and The World Tonight (Radio 4) took the view that the big story of the evening was the retirement age of judges in Poland being lowered from 70 to 65. Finger on the pulse, eh?

WHEN the authorities say the risk of nerve-agent poisoning in the Salisbury area is very low, does anyone seriously believe they know what they are talking about?

IN one Damon Runyon short story, the cops raid a bar and the gangsters hide all their guns in the pockets of an innocent customer, Tobias Tweeney. He is hauled before the court and becomes an instant Underworld hero, Twelve-Guns Tweeney. I am reminded of Tobias every time I see Monty Don in his potting shed in Gardener's World (BBC1). Count the trowels hanging on the wall. There are nine of them. Nobody needs that many. Who do ya think you're kidding, Nine-Trowels Monty?

A POSTER used by Adelaide University in Australia shows a group of five women apparently listening while the sole man in the group is talking. This, as the BBC reports, has led to complaints of "mansplaining." The problem with reporting anything involving this concept is that at some stage in your report you have to explain what mansplaining is, for the benefit of thickos who don't know.

SO at the end of its report, the BBC tells us: "Mansplaining is when a man explains an issue to a woman in a manner regarded as condescending or patronising." I wonder how many women (or men) felt patronised by the BBC report. Now we all have something new to take offence about: Beebsplaining.

OH, the irony. Back in the 1960s President de Gaulle of France repeatedly blocked Britain's attempts to join the Common Market. Fifty-odd years on, Barnier is just as intransigent. It seems that when it comes to Europe, whether we try to get in or try to get out, the road is blocked by some bloody-minded Frenchman saying: "Non."

MALADIES for our time. After heat exhaustion and sunstroke, watch out for a national epidemic of sunfreeze. A reader turned up for a meeting one hot day in shorts, only to be half-chilled to death by the air-conditioning.

WHEN millennials take over. Private Eye spotted a promotion penned by some bright young thing on The Independent's website concerning "the forgotten British comedian who paved the way for Alan Partridge and David Brent". The forgotten comedian? Tony Hancock. But that's the way fame goes. We now have a generation of nurses who, when you are giving blood and quip in a jocular sort of way: "A pint? Why, that's very nearly an armful!" just look blank.

TALKING POINT

Ideas flow in the heat of battle to save water

IT'S a no-win situation – bitter cold, windy and wet, people complain; heat-wave, people still complain.

I bumped into a woman shopping last week who said she could no longer stand the heat. I was sympathetic as it is very difficult to work outside when it is so hot, until she said she had been sitting in her garden reading. I suggested she maybe could move into the shade. Oh no, too much of an effort! Unbelievable.

Personally I love the sunshine but painting benches in the garden the other day I will admit that I was sweating – sorry glowing, not too gently – at the end of it.

That day I had to deliver some items to friends and on the way could hear the sound of – despite pleas to limit water usage – a power washer.

Yes, they do use a lot of water, but on my return journey hours later it was still in use. Heaven knows how much water that must have used and yet people are urged not to fill up paddling pools even though they must take a fraction of the amount used for cleaning a patio, which surely could wait until the weather cools down.

And England fans take note. We may have enjoyed more success than Germany in this World Cup, but we're still lagging behind them at saving water.

In this country our average water usage per person per day is 140 litres. Germany's is 120 litres, while Belgium is even more efficient, using only 107 litres a day.

With the country basking in the hottest June for 40 years, the demand for water increased massively.

Water saving tips include putting away garden sprinklers – they can use as much as 1,000 litres of drinking water in one hour, which is more water than a family of four normally use in a whole day – and instead of having a bath, take a shower, which uses 40 fewer litres of water and it's quicker, which means you can get back to watching the football sooner!

And one tip from Severn Trent, which for some reason appeals to me, is to ditch chores like washing the car and make sure there's enough water to go round for everyone, especially during mornings and evenings when demand is much higher than normal.

If paddling pools put increased demand on water supplies, don't let the little ones miss out on fun in the sun – why not give them a bucket of water and a water pistol instead to keep them entertained.

On a final note, if everyone could just use around 20 litres less each it would make a massive difference to our water supplies. And in that way you can keep what matters most hydrated – you and your family.

Remarkable students mean future in safe hands

I am constantly being amazed by folk that I meet. This could be guests on the Omma n Chain show I host with local young lads Scott and Craig for Black Country Radio or in the community.

One of my second homes is St Michael's in Rowley Regis. For a few years I have been a small part of their Links and Student Voices group. I was lucky enough with Bren Hawthorne to work on the World War One project. It acknowledged the soldiers on the plaque found at St Giles' church.

The development of the project led to this inter-generational group of pupils and members of the church. The organic way it grew was to me a confirmation that ageism does not apply in this school.

The war project was just the tip of the iceberg as I knew the pupils (who have taken over the radio show a couple of times) had so much more they were involved with.

I was over the moon then to receive an invite to their presentation evening and also asked to sing two of the songs I had written for the project. The evening took the form of groups presenting aspects of various projects. The subject matter was diverse, from money raised (a considerable amount) for Birmingham Children's Hospital, another for Children of Chernobyl. There was a food bank project (with a brilliant rap) and a fascinating project that dealt with forms of identity and issues that we face in the 21st century. When you think these students are 11 to 15, it makes all their efforts (driven by member of staff Kerry Whitehouse) all the more remarkable. DR B DAKIN (BILLY SPAKE MON) Rowley Regis

Waste of our urban rail route

YOUR letter writer, Len Hales asks 'where are the rail lines anymore?' (The Chronicle, July 5). The authorities, for 50 years, have been busy selling off urban railway lines for every kind of building imaginable that have all been granted planning permission by our whiz kid councillors!

The most recent was in October 2016 by Dudley councillors. Dudley Castle Hill railway station site is now getting built on when the railway lines and track bed are intact and run for 120km from Worcester to Derby. The former main line station at Castle Hill is now to be used for a £30 million suite of buildings for an innovation centre. All of this is outrageous and absurd.

Why sever a 120km railway through the congested West Midlands with a tramline, a test track, trees, Japanese knotweed and undergrowth, when we could have trains and stations back for less money?

Dogs die when a car becomes an oven

THERE have been numerous incidents again, reported on social internet sites, of dogs being left in cars, while their owners 'go shopping', etc.

With the current temperatures that we have, the temperature can soon rise to 120 degrees plus inside a car, even with windows slightly open.

This is probably equal to putting your Christmas turkey in the oven to cook it! The only difference is the turkey is already dead.

Leave your dogs at home with water and shade, or lose your pet for good. They cannot regulate their body temperature like us.

Help NHS survive 70 more years

NOW that the NHS has turned 70, it is an important time not only to celebrate all of the great achievements but to look forward to how we can improve it for the future.

The NHS remains an important and consistent part of the lives of many people in the West Midlands. Though it has survived the last 70 years in its current state, the NHS needs greater attention and investment if it is to survive another 70.

The recent announcement of funding by the Government is a welcome step but is short of the four per cent uplift that the British Medical Association (BMA) and many health policy experts have suggested is the minimum needed.

From the birth of a baby to palliative care at the end of life, the NHS is there for us when we need it most. The Government must ensure it is there for the NHS. DR STEPHEN MILLAR

Walk in Hagley Hall parkland for charity

A WALK in the park will be held at Hagley Hall on Sunday, July 29, raising money for Mary Stevens Hospice.

The Hall grounds will be opened up especially from 11am to 4pm for the day to help raise funds for the hospice which provides palliative care for people in the Black Country and nearby areas.

Walkers will be able to enjoy exclusive access to Hagley Hall's stunning grounds, including a chance to view the newly refurbished waterfall and parkland.

Tickets cost £5 for adults and are free for those aged 15 and under. These will be available on the day at the hall or by calling (01562) 883834.

Walkers are encouraged to bring along a picnic to enjoy in the grounds but dogs are not allowed on this walk.

"We are most grateful to Lord Cobham for allowing us access in order to raise funds for such a worthwhile cause."

Cone celebrating local heritage on Black Country Day

AN HISTORIC Wordsley visitor attraction will be celebrating all things Black Country and its own remarkable 350 year heritage on Saturday.

There will be two guided canal walks which take people through the history of glassmaking in the area, pointing out areas of industry, locations of former works and the homes of workers and factory owners.

To join in this flat, free walk call 01384 815571 to book a place.

Dr Kate Round will be delivering short talks throughout the day on the magic of glass. Discover the science behind this beautiful material and why glass goes cloudy in the dishwasher.

There will be a Bostin Black Country Teenage market with young stallholders showing off their business and creative skills, items for sale include jewellery, cupcakes, soap and art.

The regular free Sticky Saturday session will be running as normal, but with a black country theme and extended hours from 11am-4pm. Drop in and take part in a free craft activity. There will also be glassmaking demonstrations in the cone's hot glass studio from 11am-4pm.

Councillor Ian Kettle, cabinet member for regeneration and enterprise said: "The Red House Glass Cone is perfectly placed to celebrate Black Country Day. It has played a key part in the area's industrial past, and is still a busy venue today, playing a role in supporting small businesses and attracting visitors to the area.

Craft

"With walks, talks, family craft activities, glassblowing demonstrations and the ever popular Teenage Market, there's something for everyone at the cone this Black Country Day."

The Red House Glass Cone was built at the end of the 18th century for the manufacture of glass and continued to produce glassware until 1936. It is one of only four cones remaining in Britain and is the most complete example in Europe - the others are located in Scotland, Newcastle-upon-Tyne and Sheffield. It is Grade 2* listed and a Scheduled Ancient Monument. Dudley Council opened it as a visitor attraction in 2002, and the site has developed to include a range of businesses, artists studios, hot glass workshop, café and exhibitions.

Now touring for the last time, his Into the Punset show will stop off in Dudley, Birmingham and Wolverhampton, among other towns and cities.

Fans can see him at Bromsgrove's Artrix Theatre on October 11, Malvern's Forum Theatre the next day and Dudley Town Hall on October 13. He is at Birmingham Town Hall on November 1 and the following day at Wolverhampton's Wulfrun Hall.

MARY Stevens Hospice staff have delivered a workshop to improve the awareness of palliative care for the homeless and vulnerable in Dudley borough.

Gemma Allen and Claire Towns ran the one-off session for staff from West Midlands Police, Midland Heart and Dudley Council. The session was over-subscribed with 14 community figures attending.

Gemma Allen, diversity and inclusion project lead, said: "Mary Stevens Hospice's strategic vision is to provide more care for more people in our community including people from marginalised groups. We are not only raising awareness of the services we provide but educating frontline staff working directly with those who are homeless and vulnerable."

Pub was just seconds from gas explosion

A GAS leak in the cellars left Brierley Hill pub seconds away from an explosion while customers drank upstairs.

The Dog and Partridge has been stripped of its licence after safety fears were raised by British Gas.

Dudley Council's licensing panel heard how there were concerns the gas supply to the pub in the High Street had been illegally reconnected after being cut. On inspecting the premises, experts found there was a leak that left the pub 'seconds' away from becoming an 'explosive environment'.

British Gas officials warned a member of staff to put out a log burning fire and evacuate the premises. But both staff and customers refused to leave.

The panel heard a West Midlands Police spokesperson say that on March 8 British Gas asked for police assistance to gain entry to the pub and execute the warrant to disconnect the gas and electricity.

Refused

"The caller had already been to the premises but had been refused entry. The premises had recently been visited by British Gas officers, it was found that they had their gas and electricity supply disconnected five months earlier. They had twice reconnected themselves."

A British Gas spokesperson told the meeting: "We were advised there may have been an illegal reconnection so we made a visit. We were refused access. Attended again, had to call a locksmith out, we asked for access to the gas located in the basement. Nobody would allow access. There was one member of staff working behind the bar who was completely non-compliant when we discussed the details."

"When we came into the basement where the gas service comes in from the road was completely open, there was no safety caps on it, as it would have been left, there was no meter. The basement had an extremely strong smell of gas. About five or six meters away from this open gas mains we also found a stolen electricity meter.

The Dog and Partridge in Brierley Hill was at risk of a gas explosion

"We made a decision to quickly turn the handle off and decided we needed to retreat from the property. We tried to speak to the member of staff upstairs and made them very aware of the dangerous situation downstairs. They had a log fire burning in the pub at the time which they refused to extinguish. There was around seven or eight customers and we made them all aware it was extremely dangerous. They all refused to leave. When National Grid and Western Power attended they both agreed the safest course of action would be to dig up the street and remove the mains from the road."

Police visited licence holder Marguerite Field and she claimed she had nothing to do with the pub. A police spokesperson said: "We did point out to her that her name was still on the licence as the premise licence holder."

10 Growth Hub helps food firm grow

Stourbridge Chronicle Thursday, July 12, 2018

THE Black Country Growth Hub has helped a Cradley Heath business to grow.

Manor Abbey Foods engaged it for additional support with its growth strategy and BCGH quickly sign-posted a number of key contacts that could help the business achieve its goals.

It introduced Manor Abbey Foods to Sandwell Council, who had the resources, experience and influence to assist the business.

The business, established in 2000, supplies frozen, chilled and ambient food to schools, cafes and other businesses across the Black Country. Led by managing director Paul Wrighton it has grown into a well-known local business with a reputation for delivering an efficient service for all its customers.

It provides a range of high-quality coated chicken products, Manor Abbey Foods has an extensive product list that includes battered, breaded and plain fish products, potato and bread items, sandwich fillings, cakes, desserts, pies, pasties and quiches.

The company also delivers products to members of the public, as well as supplying a number of local organisations, including Sandwell Academy, George Salter Academy and Sandwell Valley Crematorium

Fines for smoking outside hospital

STAFF and patients will be fined for smoking outside Sandwell Hospital.

Hospital bosses want to make the site 'smoke free' from next summer.

Signs around the hospital will warn patients, visitors and staff they will face penalties if caught smoking on the grounds. It is not yet known how much the penalties will be.

Firefighters' new carer role withdrawn after strike threat

Peaky Climbers hit heights for charity

The Peaky Climbers from Higgs & Sons complete their challenge on Snowdon in North Wales

A TEAM from a Black Country law firm scaled Britain's highest peaks in just 24 hours as part of a gruelling charity challenge.

Ten colleagues from Brierley Hill-based Higgs & Sons, who called themselves the Peaky Climbers, reached the top of the highest peaks in England, Scotland and Wales – Scafell

Pike, Ben Nevis and Snowdon – on Friday and Saturday. The climb was in aid of Dudley Mind, the firm's charity of the year, and around £3,500 has been raised.

Higgs & Sons said on the firm's Twitter account: "They did it! Snowdon assailed, and back down within the 24 hours! #proud"

The intrepid group of legal professionals taking on the National Three Peaks Challenge were also sponsored by Sadler's Brewery in Lye, who produces Peaky Blinder Ale.

The Peaky Climbers trained on the Malvern Hills.

FIRE bosses have been forced into a U-turn over plans to take firefighters off the front line to transport people to hospital or help pensioners after a fall.

The Fire Brigade's Union claimed West Midlands Fire Authority planned to use flexible contracts to make firefighters undertake non-emergency work – including transporting people to and from hospital and helping pensioners who fall in their home.

But the scheme has now been ditched after a backlash from furious union members, who had threatened to go on strike.

Steve Price-Hunt, the brigade secretary for the Fire Brigade's Union (FBU) in the West Midlands, said the work was 'completely inappropriate' for firefighters. "Being a carer or nurse takes a unique individual to cope with the mental and physical demands," he said.

Medical

"A lot of firefighters did not sign up for a medical or carer role and are not equipped to deal with the mental pressures that come with it. You wouldn't expect a nurse to run into a burning building, so why should it be the other way round?"

The FBU says firefighters were asked to respond to falls in the home, half of which were intended for other emergency services, and operators would handle calls from lonely members of the public.

"This would have seen firefighters in the emergency control room tied up on non-emergency calls – putting 999 callers at risk and people who needed us in a life or death situation," added Mr Price-Hunt.

The contracts have been withdrawn.

£.6.7m social work staff bill for temps

DUDLEY Council has spent nearly £7 million on temporary social workers in the last financial year, new figures have revealed.

The authority has spent £6,731,869.91 on temporary or agency social work professionals between April 2017 and March 2018.

Dudley Council's cabinet member for children's services, Councillor Angus Lees, said that reducing the number of agency and temporary staff is one of the authority's "key focuses for the future".

He added that the council closely monitors the use of agency staff to ensure they are being cost effective.

The figures, which have been revealed through a Freedom of Information request, also showed that the number of temporary social workers working for the council on April 2, included 67 children's social workers.

£77m in Government funds for housing scheme

THE Government is pumping £77 million into a housing partnership to get more than 14,000 affordable homes built nationwide over the next four years. The money for the Matrix Housing Partnership will see 2,257 new homes in the Midlands.

It is part of the first wave of strategic partnerships agreed between the Government's Homes England agency to ramp up the building of affordable homes. The target is to build 14,280 additional affordable homes by March 2022.

The deals include homes for social rent in areas where house prices are particularly high, with the funding available boosted by the Government's announcement of an additional £1.67 billion for the £9bn affordable homes programme.

Eight partners have signed up to deliver more than 23,500 homes across all tenures, including for sale on the open market.

In total, Homes England will provide a funding package of just under £590m through to March 2022 to support the first wave of strategic partnerships with Matrix Housing Partnership, emh group, Great Places, Home Group, Hyde, L&Q, Places for People, and Sovereign/Liverty.

Experts at Aston Uni for UK tinnitus expo

THE UK's first-ever tinnitus expo is set to take place in Birmingham. The British Tinnitus Association (BTA) is hosting its inaugural 'Talking Tinnitus' event at Aston University on September 15.

It will bring together the wealth of information for people living with the condition. The day-long event, the first of its kind, will offer tinnitus sufferers the chance to try therapies and techniques, which aim to help manage the condition, as well as seeking help and support from the BTA and experts. The expo will feature an exhibitor hall of products and services designed to support the estimated six million people living with tinnitus in the UK.

David Stockdale, chief executive of the BTA, said: "We've already had bookings from people in Poland, Sweden and Jersey and are expecting lots of people to make the journey to Birmingham for this event."

Tickets cost £12 in advance from tinnitus.org.uk/Event/talkingtinnitus

Taxi driver attacked woman with knife

A DRUG-ADDLED taxi driver who attacked a woman with a knife while high on cocaine was starting an 18 month jail sentence last week

Abdul Jabbar knew the woman and had asked her to give him a lift when his vehicle was dropped off for repair.

The pair left in convoy after meeting by agreement in Highfield Road, Netherton, but he parked alongside a nearby block of flats and climbed into her car with a bag, Wolverhampton Crown Court was told.

The married 41-year-old admitted he was 'coked up' and had been taking drugs all night, revealed Mr Howard Searle, prosecuting.

The court heard how the defendant told the woman: 'Sorry, I don't know what I'm doing' before producing an eight inch blade knife from the bag.

Grabbed

The terrified woman tried to get out but was grabbed by the hair by Jabbar in the incident on August 26 last year, the court heard.

"She was kicking and screaming and managed to wriggle away from him to open her door," continued Mr Searle.

She got out and started to phone the police as he dashed round the car to put a hand over her mouth yelling: 'Shut up, shut up or I will stab you.'

Her cries for help were heard by a member of the public whose shouts spooked the attacker into throwing the victim to the ground and fleeing in his taxi. He was arrested soon afterwards.

The court heard that the petrified victim was not physically injured but is now frightened whenever she leaves her home and has had to change her car as it reminds her of the attack.

Mr Curtis Myrie, defending, said Jabbar's marriage was on the rocks and he had developed a serious cocaine problem.

Jabbar from Corporation Road, Dudley, admitted assault and threatening with a blade in a way that caused risk of serious harm.

He was sent to prison by Judge James Burbidge QC, who told him: "You pre planned to get a woman on her own in a car while 'coked up' and in possession of a knife.

"You had your own agenda but have not been entirely honest when claiming she had nothing to fear from you."

Troubled academy will switch trusts

A TROUBLED academy rated inadequate by school inspectors Ofsted is to be taken over by a new trust. The Ace Academy in Tipton has been in special measures for two years.

It is to leave control of the Education Central Multi-Academy Trust, run by the University of Wolverhampton. Leaders at the academy, which has more than 1,400 pupils, and was formerly known as the Alexandra School, were told by Ofsted in April that not enough progress was being made.

Parents have now been informed that the school will be taken over by another trust in an effort to bring about the improvement needed. The school has been beset by problems since converting to academy status.

14 Cannabis conviction rate falls by a third

Stourbridge Chronicle Thursday, July 12, 2018

JUST 14 people were jailed for cannabis possession in the West Midlands last year as convictions for holding the drug plummeted by a third.

In 2012, a total of 1,047 people were found guilty of cannabis possession, according to figures from the Ministry of Justice. But by 2017 this number had dropped by 37 per cent to 663.

Of those successfully prosecuted by West Midlands Police, 442 were given a fine or a discharge, while only 14 spent any time behind bars.

West Midlands Police and Crime Commissioner David Jamieson said the low conviction rate is partly down to a steep reduction in officer numbers.

He explained: "There are more than 2,000 fewer officers than there were eight years ago. This has led to a combination of two factors, fewer people to enforce the law and they have had to focus on issues that cause the most harm, such as violent crime."

Freddie-Lee Johnson, 16, centre, with staff and students at The Brades Lodge in Tividale

Friends bike and hike to support pal Freddie

THEY cycled, they hiked and they came together to support for a friend. Staff and students from The Brades Lodge school in Tividale took the mammoth journey from the Black Country to Snowdon in a bid to raise funds for two cancer charities.

Head of school Simon Hobbs said the school's students had rallied in support of fellow pupil Freddie-Lee Johnson, 16, who was diagnosed with testicular cancer last November.

Freddie's best friend Bradley Massey, 16, led the 120-mile cycle from Lower City Road to Mount Snowdon - where the group camped for a night before hiking to the summit. Mr Hobbs said: "It was very tough. The cycling was just around 100 miles and it took its toll but was well worth it with more than £1,000 raised. It is amazing for a small school to raise that amount of money, it is the most we have ever raised. Freddie came out for the photos. He was just too unwell to do the event."

The money will go towards the Teenage Cancer Trust and the Odd Balls Foundation.

'Horrifying' figures over liver disease

HOSPITALS across the Black Country and Staffordshire treated more than 450 patients for alcohol-related liver disease last year, new figures reveal.

The NHS figures represent a 35 per cent increase in the illness over the last five years and have led to calls for setting a minimum price per unit of alcohol to curb problem drinking.

Accident and emergency teams in Wolverhampton treated 109 patients for booze-fuelled liver disease last year - a rate of 52 for every 100,000 people and 75 per cent up from 2012. The rate for the whole of England is 26 for every 100,000 people.

Sandwell and West Birmingham Clinical Commissioning Group treated 165 patients, while in Walsall A&E teams treated 79.

Reduce

A total of 86 patients were treated for alcohol-related liver disease at Dudley's Russells Hall Hospital, and the Stafford and Surrounds Clinical Commissioning Group saw 21 patients, according to the figures.

Professor Roger Williams, director of the Institute of Hepatology, said the statistics for England were 'horrifying' and proposed setting a minimum price per unit of alcohol to reduce cases of liver disease.

"Liver disease is the only exception to the improvement over the past years in life expectancy for chronic disorders such as strokes, heart disease and many cancers," he said.

Mortality rates have increased by around 600 per cent in the last 50 years, due to a nationwide increase in alcohol consumption which experts say is linked to a reduced cost of booze in shops.

Prof Williams added: "Setting a minimum alcohol price is a highly effective way of dealing with the problem. In Canada, they had a 14 per cent drop in emergency admissions and 8 per cent drop in mortality in the first twelve months after setting this minimum."

Judi Rhys, CEO of the British Liver Trust, called on GPs to improve their awareness of the risk of factors. She said: "Liver disease is a silent killer because there are often no obvious symptoms in the early stages. Three quarters of people are diagnosed in a hospital when the condition is quite advanced."

Mirror, signal, watch out for that pothole

POTHOLEs should be included in the hazard perception test and Highway Code as the continued deterioration of UK roads is now badly affecting learner drivers, according to The AA.

Pothole-ridden roads are causing driving tests to be abandoned and special advice for learner drivers, according to a poll of AA Driving School and BSM instructors.

In the survey all who responded said they encounter potholes on every or most driving lessons. The majority said they had broken down during a lesson at least once in the last 12 months because of pothole damage. Damage to tyres, wheels and suspension were the most common problems.

The AA wants potholes to be included in the hazard perception part of the driving test and advice included in the Highway Code. The breakdown service also said only London saw more pothole-related damage than the West Midlands.

Museum is playing a blinder for the future

THE boss of the Black Country Living Museum has set his sights high as plans for a new historic town on the Tipton Road site moves forward.

A new visitor centre will also be opened providing a new entrance for up to 5,000 people a day.

Both are on target to be opened by Spring 2022.

Chief executive Andrew Lovett said: "We are progressing with plans for the historic town and visitor centre. On the back of rising visitor numbers this is a very exciting time for the museum."

"We are also getting attention from across the world with the filming of Peaky Blinders and Antiques Roadshow."

"But we will never stand still and we will look to improve the attraction whenever we can."

"Our aim is to become one of the most impressive museums in Europe."

The £25 million project, called Forging Ahead, has been made possible partly thanks to a £9.8m grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund last year.

Expansion

Further funding is hoped to come from the Black Country Local Enterprise Partnership, Arts Council England and Dudley Council.

Lowell Williams, chairman of the Black Country Living Museum Trust, said funding support marked 'an end and a beginning'.

In a report as part of the submitted accounts to the Charity Commission, he said: "The project –the single largest enlargement in the museum's history –will see us saving heritage, telling new and more diverse stories, targeting annual visitor attendance of 500,000."

The project, bosses say, will bring

Boss Andrew Lovett in 'Charlie's Yard' from Peaky Blinders with Adrian Horton £100m to the local economy and create 143 full-time jobs. This month, architects are continuing to work on the plans for the historic town, and the buildings and their locations have been chosen. It will be based on two roads, Market Place and Pinfold lane, next to the attraction's fairground.

The attraction already has the bricks for one of the buildings. It had to move quickly when West Bromwich's Gas Showroom was knocked down. The bricks are now kept in safe storage at the museum.

Other buildings to be reconstructed include Dudley's Victorian Woodside Library, which closed in 2008, and the J H Lavender Aluminium Foundry from Crankhall Lane, in West Bromwich.

Also to be recreated at The Harris & Pearson Brickworks of Brierley Hill, Wolverhampton's Elephant and Castle Pub, the Lea Road Medical Centre from Wolverhampton and Stanton's Records, which stood on Hall Street, Dudley.

New luxury cars helping JLR figures

JAGUAR Land Rover managed to scrape a rise in global sales last month, thanks to new cars like the Jaguar E-Pace and Range Rover Velar.

Most of the company's other cars saw sales slide in June.

The West Midlands-based luxury car maker, which makes its engines at the i54 site in Wolverhampton, also saw a drop of 9.5 per cent in sales in its crucial Chinese market.

JLR said this was because buyers had put off buying cars in June to wait for a cut in import duties on cars sold in China from the beginning of July.

Worldwide, sales of Land Rovers dipped 1.5 per cent, while Jaguar lifted 6.4 per cent. The combined figures saw JLR group sales rise just 0.9 per cent to 52,049 cars in June. Sales in the first six months are up just 0.4 per cent at 318,219.

For Jaguar only sales of 4,525 of the new E-Pace baby SUVs and 136 of the all-electric I-Paces countered a sales slide across all other models, including a 30 per cent drop in the F-Pace.

Survey of police officers shows many want to be armed

MORE than 40 per cent of police officers in the West Midlands want firearms while on duty, a survey of officers has found.

The questionnaire to 2,140 officers also found half feared their life had been in danger at least once over the past two years.

The survey by the West Midlands Police Federation has led to calls from the body for all frontline officers to be equipped with at least Taser electric stun guns.

Currently, only 22 per cent of officers have access to Tasers.

The recently-published survey comes following several attacks on officers in the Black Country.

Last week an officer was beaten up when dealing with a gang of armed men in Stone Street in Dudley, and on Monday a police officer was spat at and another racially abused at the Pitch Sports Bar in Walsall.

On June 28, a female officer was threatened by a burglary suspect with a knife in Brownhills, and the day before an officer was throttled at a pub in Birmingham.

The survey was carried out last year and had a 32 per cent response.

Training

Forty two per cent of the officers who responded said they should get training and be equipped with firearms when on duty, another 18 per cent said officers should be issued with guns when necessary.

Asked if they would be prepared to carry a firearm when on duty, 63 per cent said 'yes'. And when asked on fears over their lives when on duty, 57 per cent said they had felt in serious danger at least once over the past two years.

Nationally, police leaders have discussed arming frontline officers.

Last month Simon Chesterman, the national lead for armed police, said routine arming of regular officers was an option given the terror threat.

Richard Cooke, chairman of the West Midlands Police Federation, said: "I personally support the concept of routine arming and was one of the 42 per cent voting in favour.

"In this country Northern Ireland has routinely armed officers and doesn't seem to have issues providing day to day policing. Clearly there is historic reasons with the troubles but the point stands. Also, in Western Europe, Canada and Australia cops are armed with no significant problems."

Garden open for charity

Joyce Williams, of Westacres, getting her garden ready for the open weekend

A KEEN gardener will be opening the gates to her 32,000sq ft patch of paradise for visitors this weekend.

Joyce Williams, of Prestwood, near Stourbridge, will be one of thousands of owners of private gardens across the country who will be giving the public access as part of the National Garden Scheme.

It is the 12th year she will be opening Westacres to the public and it will be raising money for DEBRA, an international medical research charity dedicated to the curing of epidermolysis bullosa, a genetic skin condition.

Joyce said: "I started gardening around 14 years ago and I love it, it keeps me busy. I like sharing my garden with people plus it is a way of helping charity.

"When visitors pop by they are quite taken with the hostas. They love the garden and all the different areas. I have broken them down into a woodland area, bamboo area, and eating area."

"It is nice that people with similar interests visit because you can discuss gardening and make friends."

The garden in Wolverhampton Road, Prestwood, is open Saturday and Sunday from 11am to 4pm. Entrance is £4 adults, children free.

Warning over courier fraud phone scam

PEOPLE are being warned by police to be wary of a phone scam known as courier fraud being used across the region.

The scam involves thieves calling homes pretending to be police officers. They tell the occupants their bank account has been hacked, that they've arrested someone in possession of a bank card in their name, or that the crooks are running a money laundering operation. A spokesman for the force said: "They are not police officers. They are con artists.

"They trick people by telling them to call their banks immediately to block their accounts and cancel their cards but keep the phone line open so when the victim thinks they're speaking to a bank official it's actually the offenders on the line."

Firms hopeful over new trade links in France

ENGINEERING and automotive supply chain businesses from across the West Midlands region are on track to win tens of thousands of pounds of new business after taking part in a trade mission to Le Mans in France.

The 10 companies visited the region two weeks ago ahead of the famous 24-hour endurance race to meet prospective customers.

Organised and funded by the SME International Growth Project, a business internationalisation programme co-financed by the European Regional Development Fund and delivered by West Midlands Chambers of Commerce.

The mission saw the business leaders spend two days in specially organised meetings with representatives of the Loire region.

Success of Art Nouveau at auction is nothing new

ANTIQUES AND COLLECTIBLES

with John Ridgway of Perry & Phillips

TWO lovely Art Nouveau items sold tremendously well at our last sale - so this week I thought we could take a look at why this style still holds its appeal and how it must not be confused with Art Deco!

The first of our sale Art Nouveau items to grab the bidders' attention was a WMF (Württemberg Metal Factory) figural pewter two-branch candelabra of young girls in flowing robes, with full WMF marks on the base, which sold way above its estimate for an amazing £1,100.

It was a lovely piece in true elegant Art Nouveau style and it attracted numerous bids, both in the saleroom and on the phone.

The second was an Art Nouveau lidded hand-wrought brass pot with elaborate feet, featuring brambles growing into designs on the rim, decorated with coloured enamels and containing its original glass liner which again sold way over estimate at £880.

Another very beautiful item in the traditional style, a true representation of this unique design approach.

So what makes Art Nouveau so very attractive to modern-day bidders - and how is it different to Art Deco?

I think it is the timeless elegance of the Art Nouveau pieces that continues to appeal and of course with items such as those we sold we can clearly see the evidence of superb craftsmanship.

The style is lovely and really doesn't seem to date, it fits in seamlessly with any kind of interior design scheme.

So what is the difference? There was a definite overlap in terms of date, with the Art Nouveau period running from the late 1800s to the early 1900s and Art Deco being very much in vogue from the early 1900s to the 1930s.

And in terms of the design, generally Art Nouveau pieces are very flowing and flowery whilst Art Deco is more symmetrical, featuring clear lines and bold colours.

Art Deco appealed to the more 'modern' consumer as the world and its fashions moved away from Victorian and Edwardian influences.

Both remain very popular and collectable today and it's a question of personal choice as to which is the more attractive - just as it was all those years ago!

* The next Perry and Phillips sale of antiques and collectables will take place at the Mill Street saleroom, Low Town, Bridgnorth on Tuesday, August 7, from 10.30am. Viewing is during the weekend and on the Monday prior to the sale and catalogues are available from the saleroom or online at www.perryandphillips.co.uk. Newcomers to the auction should arrive in plenty of time to register and be allocated a bidding number and bids may be made (by prior arrangement) over the phone or left with the auctioneer.

* Perry and Phillips hold valuation days, for sale items only, every Wednesday from 10am until 4pm. * Video previews of each sale are available on our website, www.perryandphillips.co.uk.

Saving money during peaktime holiday breaks

IT is well known that prices for flights and hotels go up during school holidays.

With nearly 150,000 fines handed out to parents during the 2016-17 school year for children going on unauthorised leave, it's not surprising that most parents follow the rules on this - even though in many cases, the cost of the fine is far less than the increase in the cost of holidays.

Travel search engine KAYAK.co.uk has looked at some of Brits' most popular summer holiday destinations to find out just how much prices really go up during the school holidays - as well as revealing the destinations where prices go up far less.

Long-haul

Orlando - flights up by an average of £268

The Sunshine State is an ever-popular choice for British families over the summer due to the appeal of theme parks and endless sunshine for all ages. In early June, flights can be had for as low as an average of £396. However, those wanting to go in August will pay an average of £626 - and as much as an average of £664 in the second week of the month. For a family of four, this could mean that flight prices alone are over £1,000 more expensive than going just a few weeks earlier. The good news for families, however, is that average hotel prices do not go up.

Denpasar (Bali) - flights up by an average of £300

Despite the long journey, Bali is now in the top ten most popular summer holiday destinations for Brits. But those interested in going should be prepared to pay hundreds more for flights if they go during the summer holidays. In June, the prices average £448, but by the first week of August, average £748, £300 more. Again, hotels are impacted less, barely rising above £50 a night, even in the peak of the summer.

Not all air fares shoot up during peak holiday times

Short / Mid-Haul

Malaga - flight prices on average nearly double

Malaga is a popular European destination for a summer holiday - and flight prices in the second week of July (before school holidays start) are a reasonable £81. But fast forward three weeks, and average prices for August increase to £144 - 78% more. It is the same story with hotel prices, which rise to an average of £154 per night for the third week in August - compared to an average of just £107 in the first three weeks of July, before the schools break up.

Faro - flights up by an average of 83%

The Portuguese city of Faro is a great destination for a summer holiday - but the price is only great if consumers time it right. Head off in the second week of July and the flight price is just £77. But wait until August and the average is £141 - a rise of 83%. There is a significant rise in hotel prices too. Average prices in June are £91, but in the third week of August, travellers will be paying an average of £148.

And where to go where prices don't rise so much

Split (Croatia)

With its beaches and warm temperature, Split is a great destination for a summer beach holiday. During the first three weeks of July - before the schools break up - the average flight price is £160, and this only rises to an average of £189 during the holidays, a moderate increase of £29. And for those who can get away in the fourth week of July - the first week of the school holidays - flight prices are just £164, barely any more than before the school holidays.

A modern home security system synched with an iPhone app

Setting off on your holiday is exciting but have you done everything to protect your home?

Don't forget to protect property during summer

SUMMER has a magical way of making us all feel a little more relaxed and carefree, doesn't it?

When it comes to home security, however, the sunshine shouldn't be a reason for letting our guards down. In fact, there may even be a few extra things to think about during the warmer months, in terms of keeping your property and its contents safe and secure.

Whether you're jetting off on holiday, or simply going to be spending more time in the garden - or flinging windows open to let in some breeze - here are six ways to help keep your property as protected as possible.

1. Have a holiday home-security checklist

You'll want to do everything you can to ensure you're able to fully relax and enjoy that well-earned summer break - and this includes taking appropriate steps to maximise the security of your property while you're away. Some people find it reassuring to install burglar alarms and security cameras, and there are lots of apps available now that help you 'keep an eye' on your home from afar, or operate lights on timers, for instance, so it looks like somebody's in. Make absolutely sure all your door and window locks are adequate. You might want to have a chat with a trusted neighbour, who can keep an eye out for you while you're away.

Be social media savvy

By Abi Jackson

2. Watch those open windows and back doors

Nobody likes a hot, stuffy house, so of course you're going to want to have the windows open more often during summer, and if you have a back door, chances are it'll be in use more than usual too. Just don't forget to shut and lock them again if you're going out. It only takes a few minutes for opportunist thieves to sneak in or stick an arm through an open window.

With this in mind, be sensible when it comes to leaving windows open at night-time - even if you're not on the ground floor (thieves do use ladders). If you do want to sleep with the window open, look at installing security catches.

3. Don't keep valuables within reach

Still on the open windows theme, it's a good idea to ensure any items of potential value to a thief - laptops, phones, jewellery, car keys, wallets, etc - are kept well away from open windows at all times, even if they're only open a smidge.

4. Be social media savvy

Following on from the above, while we all like to 'share' our weekend jaunts and holidays on social media, in this day and age, it's wise to be cautious about how and where you're advertising the fact that your house is currently sitting empty. At the very least, make sure your Facebook profile is set to 'private' and only accept people you genuinely know and trust as your online 'friends' - that way, if you do post a snap of you with a pina colada next to a pool on the other side of the world, you know it's only good friends who'll be seeing it. Another handy hint is to be careful not to post things on Instagram and Facebook that identify your address.

5. Don't forget about garden toys and paraphernalia

It'd be lovely to think of our gardens as crime-free safe havens, but thieves have been known to target gardens and garden sheds during summertime - when we might be more likely to leave tools, toys and bikes lying around on the grass, or within easy access in a shed with a flimsy lock.

6. Is your insurance up to scratch?

Should the worst happen and you do suffer a break-in or any thefts or damage to your property, the most important thing is to that you're properly insured.

This means making sure your home and home contents insurance actually covers all the things you'd hope it does.

Magical Cornish tale from a Dudley author

Somewhere Beyond the Sea
Miranda Dickinson

LONG sandy Cornish beaches, a budding romance and a touch of magic – all the ingredients for a perfect summer read.

So much affection and familiarity is written into almost every line of this book that you would assume it was written by a born-and-bred resident of St Ives, where it is set, not a Black Country lass.

Author Miranda Dickinson clearly has an intense love of the area and its history, which seeps through in every chapter.

Sunday Times bestselling author Miranda lives in Dudley and has previously told how her first ambition was "to write a book worthy of display on the shelves of wonderful Kingswinford Library, which, at the time, was not much bigger than somebody's living room, but to wide-eyed five-and-a-half year old me was a palace of dreams."

With this her ninth book, having been published in seven languages and sold over half a million copies, she is now guaranteed a good spot in the library.

Cover of the best-selling Dudley author's latest novel, set in Cornwall with both emotional and financial challenges. Fate seems to intervene as their paths are repeatedly brought together.

They find themselves on opposite sides of a planning battle with Jack managing the redevelopment of a historic site, the derelict former home of a much-loved local astronomer, while Seren rallies the townsfolk in a fight to hold onto the building.

Seren's grief at the loss of her father is clearly quite overwhelming for her and is the motivation for almost everything she does. It comes across as very raw and touches the reader.

Miranda Dickinson first became captivated by stories at Kingswinford Library Jack's loss is very different and it is not until the closing chapters that he, and we the readers, really understand it. Their grief is very vividly portrayed and may reflect the fact that Dickinson's own father died suddenly while she was writing the book.

Despite this sadness, and the blows that life deals both Seren and Jack, it is a warm and magical book. There is empathy and affection for the protagonists and it is a book that gives us all a little hope. The perfect book to have in your bag, or on your Kindle, when you hit the beach or relax in the heatwave.

Review by Diane Davies

Heart

St Ives has clearly won a place in her heart and made a lasting impression with her latest chick-lit novel having been conceived a couple of years ago in the picturesque coastal town.

In fact much of it was written overlooking gorgeous Porthmeor Beach, her favourite, and regular visitors will no doubt recognise places, or maybe even themselves, such as Aggie's beach café which is based on the Porthgwidened Beach café

The novel follows the stories of shop owner Seren MacArthur and young father Jack Dixon who are both recently bereaved and both struggling

Style your garden to help keep thieves away

YOU may have locked your doors and windows, installed a burglar alarm and prompted neighbours to keep a watch over your home while you're on holiday, writes Hannah Stephenson.

But have you considered how the style and design of your garden could help deter thieves too? At this year's RHS Hampton Court Palace Flower Show, which finished on Sunday, designers Lucy Glover and Jacqueline Poll had a crime prevention garden that was both stunning and secure, a collaboration between crime prevention initiative Secured By Design with Capel Manor College and the Metropolitan Police.

The striking urban garden featured green security measures, such as columnar trees and prickly plants, but also a calming atmosphere and soft relaxed planting, including beautiful perennials and grasses.

"Some 75 per cent of all burglaries across the Met are via a rear garden. Those with criminal intention are looking for opportunity," said Constable Leslie Gipps, a designing out crime officer with the Metropolitan Police. "What we do in Secured By Design is put in those layers which make it harder for the criminal to spend any real time trying to break in. They will just leave that garden and go for one that's simpler."

Want to add some crime-preventing layers to your garden? Here, the garden designers and Met officers recommend some ways to help deter criminals from targeting your property...

PRICKLY PLANTS

Create a hedge of prickly plants, such as Osmanthus, pyracantha or berberis, next to boundary fencing, which can act as a layer to deter thieves.

In the crime prevention garden, the designers used Osmanthus heterophyllus, a shrub with sharply toothed leaves (similar to holly) under the windows, Berberis thunbergii f. atropurpurea, with stems that bear spiky spines, and pyracantha, a dense spiky shrub which is great grown as a hedge. Pyracantha will grow in any soil and is fast-growing.

GREEN SCREENS

Boundary fences can be the first line of defence, and a good bet is a wire mesh which you can adorn with ivy or other "green screen" – these look pretty but also act as a good deterrent. After all, a wire fence is unlikely to take someone's weight.

DUSK-'TIL-DAWN LIGHTS

Install dusk-'til-dawn low-voltage lights to ensure visibility in the garden at night. Stone effect solar lights will provide additional lighting and sculptural interest throughout the garden.

GRAVEL AROUND THE HOUSE

Gravel is noisy when walked on, so having it around your property means you can hear any uninvited visitors approaching the house. It also alerts dogs.

CURTAIN PLANTING

"The aim is to have rich colour in the garden but not big solid shrubs that somebody can hide behind, so ideally grasses and other plants you can see through," said Glover. Light planting, such as grasses and "curtain planting" with Verbena bonariensis and Sanguisorba canadensis, allows the homeowner to see through the planting.

NARROW TREES

If you want to include architectural interest, use columnar-shaped trees, which are more difficult for intruders to hide behind and also difficult to climb.

ROSES

Thorny roses can be used to great effect by training them over pergolas and other supports, which thieves might otherwise climb. The designers used rotating bars on their pergola to prevent thieves climbing. Roses will also give you scent and colour.

GREEN ROOF

Consider a green roof on your shed featuring spiky plants. The designers have planted a swathe of sedum on their shed roof, interplanted with aloe, a sharper specimen. Any intruder putting their hands on the shed roof would get a handful of prickles.

SHED SECURITY

Don't leave tools outside, but also make it difficult for thieves to gain access to the shed, where you store them.

Discovery of plastic-eating enzyme welcomed

Will the discovery mean the end of plastic being discarded?

SCIENTISTS have discovered by accident a plastic-eating enzyme that could revolutionise recycling and help solve the pollution problems in the world's oceans.

"It sounds like something out of science fiction," said green energy expert Ron Fox. "But it could be one of the great discoveries of this century."

The finding could reduce the time it takes plastic to decompose from centuries to just days and could make it recyclable.

The breakthrough came when scientists found a plastic eating bacterium that had evolved naturally at a Japanese recycling plant two years ago.

When they used one of the world's most powerful microscopes in Oxfordshire, which can see individual atoms, to work out its complex molecular structure they changed the enzyme inadvertently and made it more efficient.

Experts at the University of Portsmouth, together with the US Department of Energy, worked out that when they added a solution of the enzyme to plastic its surface literally began to dissolve away.

Professor John McGeehan, who led the research, said even they were shocked by the reaction of the improved enzyme.

They hope to broaden their work so that the enzyme could turn one of the most common plastics used in soft drinks bottles, polyethylene terephthalate, into original new plastic to be used again.

They want eventually to speed up the system and make it a large scale process so that it will reduce the industry's reliance on oil and the amount of plastic in the environment.

At present around one million plastic bottles are sold every minute around the globe with just 14 per cent recycled. Most of the rest end up in the world's oceans harming marine life and potentially people who eat seafood.

Even those bottles which are recycled now can be turned only into opaque fibres for clothing and carpets and cannot yet be made into reusable clear plastic.

"This discovery is badly needed because if this issue is not tackled soon there will be more plastic, by weight, than fish in our oceans by 2050," said Mr Fox, of Noreus Ltd on University of Keele Science and Innovation Park.

"However, I think the public perception is changing and they want to stop this ever-growing mountain of discarded plastic. But they can't be complacent, this invention will take time to be brought into operation worldwide."

He added: "In the meantime, shoppers and householders need to play their part by encouraging companies and shops to cut back their dependence on plastic packaging."

"They should also reduce their carbon footprint by recycling where possible and ensuring their homes are environmentally friendly and by using green energy."

Mr Fox recommended looking at renewable alternatives such as rooftop solar photovoltaic panels, which change energy from the sun into domestic electricity, and air source heat pumps, which convert heat from the atmosphere into power for the home.

Use water carefully while weather remains scorchio

ROSS UNDERWOOD

Head Gardener at Hodnet Hall

FOR anybody who came of age in the 1990s and watched "The Fast Show" there was a comedy skit involving a TV weather presenter.

Her bulletins from an unidentified country were almost uniformly the same... hot hot and hotter!

Well it has been a lot like that here and with the sunny dry spell set to continue it is worthwhile considering how to mitigate the affects of drought stress.

Water water everywhere might be the obvious answer, but making frivolous use of this precious resource is likely to do little to help.

The heat of the day means that water is easily drawn from the surface of the soil so ideally water early in the morning or late in the evening. This means that water will penetrate deeper and get to the roots where it is most needed so give your plants a really good soak rather than a quick splash and dash. Shallow watering will draw roots to the surface leaving the plants even more vulnerable to stress.

For containers consider moving them into a shady spot so that the pots themselves do not heat up and stand them in a saucer of water so that the water is replenished during the day and the roots are kept cool.

Evaporation

A great solution for plants in the ground or in containers is to use porous pipe or soaker hose which uses a low volume of water from an outside tap or water butt and gradually soaks the soil drop by drop. Because the water is applied directly very little is lost to evaporation.

Mulching around the base of plants will also help to conserve moisture in the soil because the water will be drawn from it first before the soil. Use compost, bark or gravel but thoroughly soak the area first so that you don't simply lock in the dryness.

Plants are losing water all the time. Water is lost through microscopic openings in the leaves and is replaced by water taken up through the roots. This process is called transpiration.

In the event of severe drought keeping the roots of herbaceous plants alive will ultimately keep the plant alive. If you have herbaceous plants that you wish to save then consider cutting off the whole plant at the base. This seems drastic – and it is.

For many plants such as geraniums and oriental poppies this will form part of routine maintenance, tidying them up after they have flowered. This can also be done with later perennials such as crocosmia, rudbeckia and asters and many more. The foliage that you cut away will be replaced

The prolonged warm weather is starting to dry out reservoirs – so think carefully about how you use water in the garden

It was only a comedy sketch – but the weather really is scorchio

my a neat mound of new growth eventually and maybe some late blooms. The important thing to consider is that at least they will be alive.

A word must be said about lawns. Grass will recover. Grass roots go deep and although the top may have gone brown the sward will return with rain. They can be kept green by irrigation and sprinklers but really this is a poor use of water at a time when it has to be conserved!

On another serious note. Gardeners as well as everyone should be careful.

As a retained firefighter I know that many

There are ways of using low volumes of water brigades, Shropshire included are stretched by demands placed on them by the current drought. Please think and act responsibly, conserve water and be careful when having a barbecue, using fires or disposing of rubbish. A carelessly tossed cigarette or glass bottle can be enough to start a major blaze.

TV is great but we prefer to sing live!

Back in the day, Jamie Lambert used to drive past the Royal Albert Hall and the London Palladium and dream. He was working part-time in the finance department of Barts Health NHS Trust, in London, and looking for a break.

And while he hoped he might one day sing at such incredible venues or enjoy chart success, he realised it wasn't sensible to bank on that.

And then his life changed. He became friends with Matt Pagan and the two of them used social media to find three other singers to complete the Collabro line-up. They gigged at a pub near London Bridge and decided to audition for Britain's Got Talent, figuring they had nothing to lose.

A month after forming, they found themselves singing for Simon Cowell, Amanda Holden, Alesha Dixon and David Walliams. Their rendition of Stars, from Les Miserables, earned them a standing ovation.

Four months later, they appeared on BGT's live final – and won by a landslide with more than a quarter of the vote. Things have never been the same since. They signed a million pound record deal and their debut album went to number one. They headlined the London Palladium and sold 50,000 tickets for their tour, as well as joining Cliff Richard on his major headline tour of the UK.

Jamie says it's been a whirlwind. "It's been fabulous. I loved working at Barts but Collabro has changed my life dramatically and sometimes it's a bit weird to drive past where I used to work. It's been four years now and we've just announced the fourth major tour and fourth album." That tour will visit Birmingham's Symphony Hall on April 15 and Wolverhampton's Grand Theatre on April 16 next year – before they return to the Albert Hall a few days later.

Prior to that, they'll play Telford's The Place In The Park Festival on August 16 and then support Barry Manilow at Birmingham's Arena on September 4. It's a busy old year.

"We have a very dedicated fan base and we're gigging throughout the year. The people who follow us feel very much like fans for life; it's almost like a family. The fans are very much valued."

"From our perspective, we hope to keep going for a long time. We each have our own little bits outside the band and do separate pantos but then we get back together to do these epic 50-date tours."

Jamie keeps his feet on the ground and doesn't forget how fortunate the band are. One minute he was working in the NHS – within a month or so he was on TV for the start of an incredible ride.

"We are privileged to have been going for four years. Last year we released our own album and it still got into the top 10 and when it comes to touring we're doing more tickets than ever before. We're having to look forward for about a-year-and-a-half."

"We work and arrange our own stuff. We still perform to tens of thousands of people all the time and there is a degree of pride in how things have gone. We've always worked to bring musical theatre to more people – that was our aim when we did BGT. By combining musical theatre with that boy band group thing, we wanted to appeal to more people."

On a song – Collabro will be appearing in Telford in August

Jamie has mixed feelings about Britain's Got Talent. Much of it was surreal as the band found themselves becoming an overnight success. Other bits were entirely forgettable.

"The truth about BGT is that a lot of it was awful. It's sort of like anything that's incredible, there's always a terrible side. It was almost like getting into a new relationship where everything's a crazy and a buzz but also mad. There was a downside and you have to remember that this is a crazy and competitive industry."

"To go from playing in a pub to being in front of 12 million and to go from 300 Twitter followers to 100,000 was remarkable. We went from zero to 100 in six weeks. We were quite lucky that a couple of us were business-minded. We weren't teens and we weren't too star struck. But it's so easy to get caught up in the madness of it. I'm just grateful that we've lived through that. These days, it's much better. We control everything and work together well. It's been two years as a four and we get on so well. The system works, it's like a well-oiled machine."

Though Collabro emerged from the world of TV, they are happiest when they're in theatres.

It's so easy to get caught up in the madness of it – it's better these days

Playing to a live audience gives them the greatest buzz of all, which is why they undertake such gargantuan tours.

"While TV is great, we love that, we also enjoy performing live, probably even more. That's why the next tour is so cool. Most bands don't last but we're already looking ahead towards our sixth year."

"We are four best friends who go on the road and when it's finished we go out for a drink. We all have our separate lives as well. When you first move to London, you don't have that life. But these days, we can take time away from the band which is super healthy."

"When people win these TV talent shows, a lot of them get wrapped in cotton wool so they last two minutes. They think they'll be the next Beyoncé and they stop working at it. They're not nice to people. It's all wrong."

"We are known for being overtly accommodating and easy to be around. We're very hard working too. When we won BGT, we sent all 60 production crew members chocolates and flowers and cards."

The band's low-key approach extends to their tour. "That's the way we work. You see some people's riders and they are crazy. For us, it's a bottle of red a bottle of white wine and some Haribos."

Kevin and Karen Clifton

Dance show goes on after golden couple's split

THE show will go on for Strictly Come Dancing married couple Kevin and Karen Clifton despite their break up.

The dance duo will continue as professional partners in their spectacular touring show – Kevin and Karen Dance – which is at Symphony Hall, Birmingham, on Saturday.

In a high-energy performance filled with heart-pounding choreography and sparkling costumes, Kevin and Karen will be dazzling audiences.

Backed by a supporting cast of dancers and a live 12-piece show band, Kevin and Karen's most famous routines from the top TV show will be brought to the stage – and the duo are looking forward to performing together.

Kevin said: "Privately we're not together right now but dance is the glue that holds us together."

"We're having a great time creating a brand new show filled with sassy glamour and edge-of-your-seat routines."

Karen and Kevin have appeared on Strictly Come Dancing since 2010 and 2011, respectively.

They first met as dancers on the stage show Burn The Floor and first appeared on Strictly when they were engaged.

The couple tied the knot in July 2015, with the marriage being the second for both dancers.

However, they have since gone their separate ways in their private lives – even though they're still performing live together.

Unheard Hancock as lost scripts found

Two lost Tony Hancock radio scripts from the 1950s are to be performed in Stourbridge later this year.

Billed as The Lost Hancocks: Vacant Lot, the production has a cast including impressionist James Hurn (BBC2's Dead Ringers) and Janice Connolly (AKA Mrs Barbara Nice).

In 1952 West Bromwich comedy writer Larry Stephens convinced the BBC to let him create a series for his friend and rising star Birmingham's Tony Hancock. Entitled Vacant Lot, the series focused on life in the faded fictional seaside town of Churdley Bay, where the blundering, pompous Hancock aspires to better his lot.

Despite a cast of colourful characters (with Peter Sellers, Spike Milligan and Kenneth Connor all mooted for roles), Vacant Lot was never recorded and lay buried in the BBC archives until now.

Larry Stephens wrote much of Hancock's stage material as well as sketches for his ATV series, The Tony Hancock Show. Writing on his own and with such future legends as Spike Milligan and Eric Sykes, he penned material for Peter Sellers, Harry Secombe, Bernard Braden, Dickie Valentine, Jon Pertwee and Arthur Askey. A key figure in the development and success of The Goon Show, he went on to work for TV hit The Army Game before dying suddenly in 1959, aged just 35.

The Lost Hancocks: Vacant Lot will be performed at Stourbridge Town Hall on September 19, as part of the build up to Birmingham Comedy Festival. The only other performance this year is at the British Library in London.

Tickets for the Stourbridge show are available online at www.boroughhalls.co.uk or by calling (01384) 812812.

Mini mania for Italian Job orchestral revival

One of Britain's most iconic films, The Italian Job, will return to the big screen at Birmingham Symphony Hall on Sunday with an orchestra playing the famous Quincy Jones score live to the picture. The HD remastered version of the 1969 film starring Michael Caine, Noel Coward, Benny Hill, a young Robert Powell and some fabulous Minis, will be accompanied by a live orchestra for the first time. They will play the famous soundtrack by legendary composer and producer Quincy Jones, including the song On Days Like These during the opening sequence. Quincy Jones composed the soundtrack, including Getta Bloomin' Move On, usually referred to as The Self-Preservation Society. The movie also includes one of film history's most famous one-liners: "You're only supposed to blow the bloody doors off!"

Enjoy a Flat Pint with joker Jonny

MOTD Live: FIFA World Cup 2018 (BBC1, 3.50pm)

Gary Lineker presents coverage of the final (Kick-off 4.00pm), which comes from Luzhniki Stadium in Moscow, as the sport's most prestigious match takes place and the successors to Germany are crowned. The defending champions sensationally crashed out at the group stage this time around, finishing bottom of Group F following defeats to Mexico and South Korea, with their solitary victory over Sweden eventually counting for nothing. There were six previous World Cup winners who made it through to the knockout phase, however, as Uruguay, Spain, France, Argentina, Brazil and England all safely made it past their groups, though Spain and Argentina fell at the last-16 stage.

A new life

When former specialist nurse Sheila Haycock finally found a solution for her failing teeth she quite literally received a prescription for a new life . . . and so did her husband, Dave.

Emotionally broken by a catalogue of dental disasters, for a whole year she suffered pain every day and her confidence plummeted. "Each day was a nightmare.

"Every day I'd have a new ulcer in my mouth. I couldn't eat properly, stopped going out and couldn't face looking at myself in a mirror – in fact, I'd cover them up.

"I'd speak and laugh with my hand in front of my mouth, avoid having my picture taken and couldn't chew properly – if I did go out, I'd always have to order lasagne because it was soft food," she recalls.

Terrified of dentist

Sheila's problems began when her natural teeth became mobile and braved her worst fears, having a full clearance to make way for an upper and lower denture.

Terrified of the dentist, she adds: "I thought it was impossible for things to get worse, but nothing could have prepared me for the next 12 months. The first time I took my teeth out and looked in the mirror, psychologically, I was beside myself.

Sheila and Dave Haycock - a new outlook on life

"I'd been so preoccupied with mastering my fear of the dentist, I hadn't worked through the impact of losing my teeth would have on me. It was devastating."

Initially, Dave confesses to "not being that helpful," explaining her native teeth "needed to go and to deal with it."

"I know, I told him," says Sheila, "but they were mine!"

Even the loss of a single tooth is now clinically recognised as a potential precursor for a mourning process.

Adds Dave: "She was upset and I felt utterly helpless. The guilt of it all . . .

I wanted to help, but couldn't. I could eat what ever I wanted, but she couldn't and every day – every day – there was a new problem to address."

Retired nurse Sheila got a new smile after a year of dental misery, husband Dave admits he too is now enjoying the life changes it's brought about.

Predictably reassuring

My experience with Steven and his team was the best. Getting the implants really is money well spent.

- Roy Phillpott

Steven's professionalism gave me the confidence and assurance that they could resolve my problem.

- Norma Aston

When I first saw my teeth I thought they looked just like my real teeth.

- Vicki Ball

it over and over again. I was not coping."

Taking advice from her daughter, who had received a recommendation from a work colleague that North Street Dental and Implant Clinic could help, Sheila headed for Dudley.

"Within 15 minutes of walking in to the surgery Steven [practice principal Steven Burchell DipCDT RCS(Eng)] was helping me," she says.

As a temporary measure, an oral impression was taken and her painful dentures lined with a soft material that would help ease the discomfort and improve fit.

'Own teeth'

Sheila was prescribed a traditional top prosthetic and a lower over-denture, retained on two implants. The surgery was carried out under sedation by North Street's clinical lead, Owain Rees BDS DGD(UK) Dip Imp Dent (UCL) GDC61576.

"All I can say is that it has completely changed my life. There's nothing I can't eat and the implant prosthetic doesn't feel false. It's comparable for me to my own teeth. When I first saw my new teeth in the mirror, I thought who's this person? They looked natural, just like real teeth," says Sheila.

Dave, a former civil engineer, adds: "She's completely different. It's been life-changing for me too and we can now get on with our retirement."

Both keen gardeners, they agree the financial investment is in a quality life choice. "It's the best thing she's ever had done," adds Dave.

Nadiya serves up a tasty treat with her favourite dishes

Believe it or not, there was a time when cooking shows just didn't matter. They were cosy time-fillers that propped up the schedules while we waited for the likes of Top of the Pops, Tomorrow's World and super soaps like Dallas and Dynasty. But then things changed. Yes, the humble cookery show was still cheap to make (a staple ingredient for any cash-conscious producer), but with the right person, or people doing their bit to cameras, it could be the stuff of TV gold.

Thanks to mavericks like Keith Floyd, who berated his producer and essentially directed the show himself inbetween glugs of wine, the nation realised cookery shows could be fun. Yes, Delia Smith might be there like a stable rock with top cooking tips, but Floyd was a culinary rock star, who just happened to look like an eccentric professor. Fast forward to 2016 and we have more cookery shows than we can shake a (chop) stick at. Every type of series, with a vast array of larger-than-life presenters, who travel the world and carry out cooking sketches in exotic locations while we at home dream mournfully over beans on toast. One of the greatest finds of recent years is of course Nadiya Hussain, the Great British Bake Off winner whose bright ideas, offbeat sense of humour and magnetic screen presence ensured her fanbase grew faster than a proving loaf with too much yeast.

In the past three years since she became a household name, the 33-year-old Leeds mum of three has fronted compelling travel show The Chronicles of Nadiya; co-hosted The Big Family Cooking Showdown; helped edit the BBC's Good Food magazine; written a weekly broadsheet column, and is now back on the box with this lip-smacking new series. She'll be showing viewers how to create the perfect dishes to compliment any kind of day, and inspiring home cooks along the way.

Nadiya begins by demonstrating recipes for family days out, including chai-spiced vermicelli, cheese biscuits with tomato jam, a filling samosa pie, as well as a prawn saffron biryani to come home to.

Though you can of course add plenty of butter and full-fat milk to certain dishes, Nadiya is well aware that most of us are fighting the battle of the bulge, so she offers lighter alternatives. Her quest to find the best homemade pasty in Britain takes her to Cornwall, and she also visits a rapeseed-oil farm in Northampton. "For me, food is all about family, and those special moments when we all come together over a mouthwatering meal," explains Nadiya.

"I want to share some of my yummy family favourites. Dishes for every kind of day. I'm also going to travel the country, meeting inspirational home cooks who go the extra mile to make scrumptious products that most of us buy in the shops."

Nadiya's Family Favourites, Monday, BBC2, 8pm

MONDAY

The Island That Saved My Life BBC1, 7.30pm

Suffering from depression and with an accompanying trait of shyness, 23-year-old Sarah Moore found her life in Edinburgh tough. She found a solution, however - even though it meant leaving her family, she moved to the remote Orcadian island of North Ronaldsay, which boasts a population of around 50. There, she took up several jobs, and started to build a new life for herself; one which suited her down to the ground. Now, much happier in the beautiful surroundings of the Orkney Isles, she feels much more a member of the community - and, ironically, has a far more active social life than she did in the Scottish capital. This documentary, part of BBC One's Our Lives strand, tells her remarkable story.

TUESDAY

Inside the Factory BBC2, 8pm

For millions of us, getting through the day without a coffee or three is an unthinkable prospect, but what goes into making the stuff? In the first of a new run, Gregg Wallace explores an enormous Derbyshire coffee factory, where they produce 175,000 jars a day. He follows the production of freeze-dried instant coffee, from the arrival of 27 tonnes of Brazilian green coffee beans right through to dispatch. Meanwhile, Cherry Healey learns about the drink's chemistry and Ruth Goodman investigates its origins, visiting the site of the UK's first coffee house which sprang up in a London churchyard in 1652.

WEDNESDAY

Animals Behaving Badly BBC1, 8pm

A new three-part series from the BBC - and let's face it, who does animal docs better? - focuses on the science behind animal behaviour. While it may have a fun and often adorable veneer, it also sneaks in a bit of science along the way. The first episode focuses on mating, and frankly some of these critters have habits which we may find distasteful to say the least. Presenter Liz Bonnin reveals how mongoose are apt to start turf wars simply to create a distraction in order to sneak in and mate; macaques meanwhile will actually kidnap babies in order to curry favour with rivals. Meanwhile, in the American plains, she finds out why promiscuity might be the key to healthy offspring - in prairie dogs, at least.

THURSDAY

George Clarke's Old House, New Home Channel 4, 8pm

New series. Architect George Clarke returns to unlock the potential of old houses. He meets teachers Simon and Sofie, whose 1930s Liverpool semi has lost its way thanks to a small kitchen squeezed into what would have been the wash house and some dodgy interior design choices made by the previous owner. Can he come up with a structural redesign and interior scheme with just £15,000? He also visits a medieval farmhouse in Kent that's like a perfectly preserved time capsule and needs an upgrade suitable for a young and rapidly growing family.

Red Lion the mane attraction

Being new in town means it's not always easy to show initiative when it comes to going out. You don't know the area and have no knowledge of any decent places to eat or drink out at.

But it was clear that a country pub was to be the destination on a summer's evening.

An escape from the city hell on a hot day in the office.

The Red Lion at Bradley is a pretty little pub in a proper, picturesque English setting. The white-washed walls of the 17th century building and perfect flower borders look totally in character for its village setting.

Driving up to the pub it was easy to feel all the stresses and strains of the day slip away and be replaced with calm and tranquillity.

SWIFTLY

When Mr and I wandered in to the pub, it caught us a little off guard as all eyes appeared to be on the strangers from another land.

As we were the first in for dinner, it meant we got our pick of the tables and The Husband – who is a little particular about where we sit – made a beeline for the table I had my eyes on. A window seat for two tucked away from other diners. We did have to shuffle the table, however, as Husband had parked himself right under a speaker.

The waitress was very smiley and gave us menus to deliberate over and took a drinks order, a Birra Moretti and Pinot Grigio. They arrived with a bottle of chilled water, the order was taken and we relaxed into our peaceful surrounds before our starters. I'd gone for the soup of the day – French onion with a crusty roll and he fancied the warm garlic and rosemary focaccia with aged balsamic, olive oil with the idea of sharing. The soup was amazing, full of oniony flavour with gorgeous chunks of the veg thickening up the hearty liquid. The best bit was the huge French bread crouton covered in melted cheese floating on top. There was no crusty roll but we did have the bread starter, a large portion of four pieces of focaccia full of rosemary. The olive oil and balsamic vinegar were of a high quality and the herby bread a great complement to the oil and vinegar mix.

Nothing was left of the starters and we sat back waiting for them to settle as we admired the serene surroundings. By the time our mains arrived the dining room had begun to fill up a little. I'd gone for a pub classic – fish and chips – but instead of the usual cod it was battered haddock with chips, tartare sauce and minted mushy peas, which ordinarily I would not be keen on, but these were delicious.

The chicken was going down just as well over the other side of the table and, I am assured, the whole meal was rated as 'top drawer'.

I was defeated and couldn't finish it all. His plate was cleared and our bellies were happily full.

Husband was keen to sample a dessert but I was too stuffed to even contemplate such a thing. Sticky toffee pudding with ginger ice cream was his choice. But with two spoons, so I could tuck in too. It was well worth finding the tiny bit of room my tummy had left. I'm pretty sure I ended up devouring the majority of it too.

Our bill came to £53.20 with no complaints and such lovely, friendly service.

It's a place we'd happily return to. Out of the way, quiet and with satisfying food, The Red Lion is surely the mane attraction in the pretty village of Bradley.

Practical with surprising dose of style

By Ryan Hiron

The van-turned-MPV has been a mainstay in the market for a number of years now – if one that has been dwindling for a while.

The PSA Group – consisting of Peugeot, Citroen and now Opel/Vauxhall – has been right at the forefront of this particular game for some time with the big-selling Peugeot Partner Tepee and Citroen Berlingo twins, and it's not giving up the ghost just yet. A new wave of these machines is on the horizon, and this is the first – the Peugeot Rifter.

With the ever-growing presence of SUVs though, does buying a van-based MPV still make sense in 2018?

Although the concept of a van-MPV is nothing new, the Rifter itself is a pretty fresh machine. In fact, it's a new name – replacing the old Partner Tepee in the range and distancing itself from the Partner van it's based on.

It's got a new look as well – taking on Peugeot's most recent corporate design. Inside the cabin, the firm's stylish i-Cockpit cabin also makes an appearance.

As for engine options, there's a choice of powertrains plucked from the rest of PSA's range – namely PureTech 110 and 130 petrol engines, along with BlueHDi diesels in 75, 100 and 130 guises.

We took the helm of a Rifter powered by the BlueHDi 130 unit – a 1.5-litre engine delivering 128bhp and 221Nm of torque, here paired up to an eight-speed automatic gearbox. No official word on 0-60mph times.

As for efficiency, Peugeot claims 65.7mpg is possible on the combined cycle with CO2 emissions of 114g/km.

Don't expect it to be the last word in

There's a 775-litre load capacity performance, but the diesel engine provides ample power to cart around the Rifter without ever feeling asthmatic. Gear changes from the automatic 'box also feel seamless and, despite the van roots, there's little noise from the engine itself – allowing for a relaxing ride.

The Peugeot Rifter was never destined to be a serious driver's car, but the experience behind the wheel is a little less than stellar – its van roots shine through all too well.

Steering falls on the light side yet the Rifter requires a ton of input at low speed to navigate around relatively tight turns, while at higher speeds body roll is incredibly present – perhaps to be expected for such a tall machine.

Style isn't the name of the game in this market segment, but the Rifter is a pretty good-looking thing in its own right. The introduction of Peugeot's corporate style pays off here – with the angular language sitting well on the van dimensions.

Compared with SUVs – even those from

Style isn't the name of the game in this market segment, but the Rifter is a pretty good-looking thing in its own right

Peugeot – it's not a fashion icon but does manage to pack genuine practicality into a good-looking package.

Step into the driver's seat and you'll be greeted by the firm's i-Cockpit cabin which is slowly but surely taking over its entire range. It brings a high-positioned instrument cluster, eight-inch touchscreen infotainment system (on Allure and higher models) along with a compact, race car-esque steering wheel to create an encapsulated feel.

Looking for pure practicality? We're glad to report the Rifter offers tons of that. The three rear seats all feature Isofix mounting points meaning all the kids can come along for the ride in child seats, while a 775-litre load capacity with all seats in place means you can fit more than enough for a family week away in the back with ease. Still not enough? A seven-seat version will be landing in the UK in 2019.

Pricing for the full range has yet to be confirmed, but the GT-Line BlueHDi 130 as tested will be available from £24,220. For the money, equipment on offer includes keyless start, automatic dual-zone climate control, satellite navigation and tons of gloss black exterior highlights to bring a stylish edge – on top of LED daytime running lights, an eight-inch infotainment system with Apple CarPlay and Android Auto support amongst others.

The Rifter manages to bring a hint of style to a segment often not associated with it, while retaining the practicality and daily usability MPV buyers will be hoping to expect – and although it may struggle to hide its roots as a van, we can forgive that.

Dashcam footage direct to the police

Dashcam manufacturer Nextbase has launched a website to make it easier to submit accident footage to police.

The National Dashcam Safety Portal (NDSP), which is up and running with English and Welsh forces, has the backing of Nextbase along with Warwickshire, West Mercia and West Midlands Police. A further 16 forces are signed up to receive data from the service.

It comes after the success of Operation Snap – a similar system set up by North Wales Police before being adopted by the rest of Wales's police forces. All four are now signed up to the NDSP.

The not-for-profit portal lets drivers submit incriminating dashcam footage alongside a witness statement.

Camera owners head to the NDSP's website, where submitted footage is held on a secure server. Police can then view it instantly, which is a vast improvement over the current time it takes to process video clips – as much as 14 hours in some cases.

At the moment, though, some police forces still need to be contacted as well by email or by phoning 101.

Richard Browning, director of Nextbase, said: "The surge in dashcam usage in recent years is testament to the number of motorists looking to protect themselves and their families out on the roads. Naturally, this has led to an increase in footage submitted to police forces."

"Until now, most forces have not had the means to receive or process this footage efficiently, so the National Dashcam Safety Portal has been developed with this in mind."

It has been welcomed by road safety charity Brake, with director of campaigns Joshua Harris saying: "This is a fantastic initiative which couldn't be more timely. The increasing popularity of dashcams is a huge positive for road safety. However, with more drivers than ever seeking to report illegal behaviour the burden on the police has increased."

"This portal is an elegant solution which enables the police to process this vital data without wasting their scarce resources. We fully support this initiative and urge its swift adoption across the UK."

Now 'a real car' company

American electric vehicle manufacturer Tesla has finally reached production targets for its first mass-market car – the Model 3.

The brand has missed ambitious targets in the past but last week produced a total of 5,031 Model 3s – finally reaching its goal of 5,000 units per week by the end of the second quarter of 2018. That target was initially set for December 2017 but was pushed back twice – to the end of 2018's first quarter and then its second quarter. "I think we just became a real car company," said chief executive and founder Elon Musk in a leaked memo to staff. "Transporting entire production lines across the world in massive cargo planes. Whatever. It worked."

The brand's tactics have met with some criticism, though. To meet targets, Tesla set up an assembly line in a rigid tent in one of the car parks of its California factory – a move some see as a quick and unsustainable fix to the problem. "A new building was impossible, so we built a giant tent in two weeks," tweeted Musk at the time. Musk's tweets also included photographs of parts and equipment lined up ready for fitting, such as a huge room full of drivers' seats or electric motors. Though the images look encouraging, commentators said this method was far from efficient – pointing Musk towards the 'just-in-time' system employed by most major car manufacturers, which sees parts delivered to the factory just hours before they're due to be fitted to a car.

Stylish, luxury SUV that is a real pleasure to travel in

By Sharon Walters

In a market somewhat overwhelmed with choice, how do you choose which luxury SUV to buy?

Most people go for badge loyalty and stick to what they've known for years. And quite often that means they've become stuck in a rut, a nice rut but one that could well do with breaking out of because there's nothing like having a change.

Now to my suggestion for that change – the Lexus RX. It's been around for quite a few years and is in its fourth generation. But it's not that well-known on our roads. More than 234,000 RX have been sold in Europe and of that number 47,600 in the UK. Quite a small number in the luxury pool over the years.

My suggestion in particular is the 450h F Sport. It's smart, sexy and packed with loads of goodies.

Distinguished

The RX F Sport is distinguished from the rest of the range by a series of exterior elements with a matching black finish. This includes the signature Lexus spindle grille, featuring a sequence of horizontal bars, framed in chrome and flanked by fog lights set in new black surrounds.

20-inch alloy wheels have a five-twin-spoke design and are also painted black. The side profile has black housings for the heated, electrically adjustable door mirrors with integrated turn indicators and auto-folding function.

At the rear there's a black diffuser treatment for the lower part of the bumper.

In addition to the external features, the RX F Sport is equipped to a high level. LED headlight, smooth leather or high-quality fabric upholstery and a nine or 12-speaker Pioneer premium audio system with, eight or 12.3-inch Lexus Media Display are all provided as standard.

The cabin is truly luxurious with very high quality trim, a pleasure to travel in.

On the safety side the Sport has the Lexus Safety System+ package of active safety and driver assistance features that includes pre-collision system, adaptive cruise control, lane departure warning, lane keep assist and traffic sign recognition. You also get many airbags, sway warning alert, ABS with electronic brakeforce distribution and brake assist, hill start and tyre pressure warning.

The full hybrid system means that whenever the vehicle is being driven the electric motor is always operating.

The RX F Sport is distinguished from the rest of the range by exterior elements with a matching black finish

The side profile has black housings for the heated, electrically adjustable door mirrors

The petrol engine will stop and start at any vehicle speed depending on a variety of conditions to maintain the best possible balance between performance and efficiency.

Performance-wise the car will get from 0-62mph in 7.7 seconds, not bad for a vehicle of this size, and gas a top speed of 124mph.

Figures are all well and good but it's where the power lies in difficult situations. Let me say this car had plenty of oomph to negotiate motorway traffic and push through winding country roads. And the electric CVT transmission is smooth and responsive.

This 450 F Sport also has a top five-star rating from Euro NCAP.

My test car had a number of options including the Premier Pack (£4,500) with items such as panoramic sunroof (making the so light and airy inside), head-up display and panoramic view monitor

On-the-road price is £54,145.

New Santa Fe moving upmarket

Hyundai has announced prices for the fourth-generation of its popular Santa Fe SUV. The new car will start from £33,425, putting it in the firing line of rivals such as the SsangYong Rexton, Land Rover Discovery Sport and Kia Sorento.

The new Santa Fe gets a total exterior revamp from the previous model. Now, there's an eye-catching design language inherited from the compact Kona SUV, which sees a bold 'Cascading' grille flanked by the now-signature 'upside-down' headlamp design.

The Hyundai's seven-seat interior also receives a premium makeover, with improved material quality and extra head- and leg-room for passengers travelling in rows two and three.

In the UK, three trims will be available, though all share just one engine – a 2.2-litre diesel unit, that already features in the Kia Sorento and produces 197bhp. It's mated either to a 6-speed manual transmission or an eight-speed dual-clutch auto.

The range kicks off with SE trim, which is only available with front-wheel drive. It gets seven seats as standard, plus roof rails, a rear-view camera, all-round parking sensors, dual-zone climate control, cruise control, and an infotainment display with Apple CarPlay and Android Auto.

Stepping up to Premium grade sees the price rise to £36,995, but offers an impressive level of equipment including keyless entry, LED headlamps, leather seats, a KRELL sound system, built-in navigation and an electric tailgate. It's offered with manual or automatic transmissions and two or four-wheel drive, making the £38,995 Premium the cheapest 4WD Santa Fe available.

Finally, there's top-spec Premium SE, which costs from £41,795. It's offered only with the eight-speed automatic gearbox and is packed with premium kit including 19-inch alloy wheels, a panoramic glass roof, ventilated front seats, a head-up display, 360-degree cameras and sensors.

Safety equipment is a big focus, and all Santa Fe models feature lane keeping assist, high beam assist and autonomous emergency braking. All automatic variants also get speed-variable cruise control. Premium grade and above also receives blind-spot detection and rear occupancy alert, designed to prevent drivers from

Game on as 1,000 pupils enjoy sporting festival

IT was game on as more than 1,000 youngsters went to a Black Country sports day. The competition was fierce as more than 80 schools from across the region went head-to-head.

The seventh annual Black Country School Games Summer Festival was held at the University of Wolverhampton's Walsall campus.

Teams of young athletes from Wolverhampton, Dudley, Sandwell and Walsall battled it out in a bid to be crowned the Black Country champions and win the Joel Richards Black Country Schools Games Festival Cup.

Ian Carey, director of Active Black Country who organised the event, said: "School Games is an annual festival where we seek to bring all schools across the region together in a celebration of activity, participation and competition.

"We have got over 250 young volunteers gaining brilliant experience and skills that will stand them in good stead in terms of school but also in their future life.

Introduce

"The young people they drive the menu of sport themselves – it is led by them. I think the children are our future and unfortunately the region suffers from some of the highest levels of childhood obesity. I think this is a great way to bring children together and introduce them to activity.

"It is a great way to introduce them to sport and physical activity on a level playing field that tries to meet the needs of all young people.

"We are just aiming for people to be able to play sport and be physically active. I believe it is a human right that people should have to play sport or be physically active."

Young people took part in a range of activities – including sports hall athletics, multi skills, rounders, rugby, cricket, dodgeball, tri-golf, multi skills, football and duathlon.

One of those taking part, Tia Maisur, aged eight, from Lanesfield Primary School in Wolverhampton, said: "We have been doing golf and we had to get the balls in the hole. It is my first time at the festival. I think it is really good."

SPORTING FEATURE

Report by Luke Bartlett

"It's a great way to introduce them to sport and physical activity on a level playing field that tries to meet the needs of all young people"

Another, Jack Bickley, aged seven, from Abbey Infant School in Smethwick, said: "It was really good because we got to do a lot of activities and try different sports out."

For Andrew Marlowe, physical education teacher at The Jane Lane School in Walsall, bringing his team of boys to take their chances at going for gold in the football was 'second to none'.

He said: "You have to qualify for The Black Country Games so it is quite prestigious. Just to get here all of the schools have done well. Whilst we are here there is of course going to be an eventual winner but there is a lot of talent on show.

"We have been a few times. We are lucky enough that we have a good batch of lads every key stage and every year we do qualify for it, but it is important for them to come here, to meet new people and new schools.

"It is a confidence thing as well, we all want to win but just for them to take part and see the smiles on their faces is second to none."

It was a good showing for Sandwell at the games – who among other notable victories saw Bristnall Hall take the first place for football and Uplands Manor take the first place for golf.

But the overall award went back into the hands of the Wolverhampton students for the second year running – who won the multi skills category with St Andrews and rounders with Wolverhampton Girls High.

They won the Joel Richards Black Country Schools Games Festival Cup – which was renamed two years ago to honour the former Wood Green Academy pupil after he lost his life in the Tunisia terror attack of 2015. Remembering the teenager is something that his former headteacher James Topham says is something the school wanted to do.

Mr Topham said: "Joel was a volunteer, he helped out at these games, he did thousands and thousands of hours of volunteering for sports, he was a real ambassador for sport.

"He absolutely loved this event. The tragic circumstances in Tunisia where he lost his life, as a school because Joel was a former pupil of Wood Green Academy, we wanted to do something to remember him.

"At that time I was chair of the local organising committee and as Joel had done so much for the Black Country in terms of sport, we wanted to be able to remember him.

"We decided on the Joel Richards Trophy, which we never had before, and also having Smile For Joel as the official charity of the games.

"I'm really pleased they are taking this charity on board. Joel was selfless, he would actively go out of his way to help people, not just in the games but as a football referee.

"Had he not lost his life in that terrorist attack, no doubt he would still be giving back to his community. We have lost that, and I hope that having him remembered and his life inspires other young people to get involved."

Future looking bright for Beacon League

THE future for one local football league looks bright after it announced an increase in club membership for the forthcoming campaign, writes Dave McLean.

Not only have the Beacon Sunday Football League (BSFL) accepted five new teams so far – it is still not too late to join the ranks – the afternoon set-up have confirmed the introduction of a new match-day initiative.

From the start of the new league season on September 2, member clubs have adopted the use of roll-on/roll-off substitutions for all competitions. Under the new rule, teams will be allowed to name five substitutes and use them at anytime in a game.

In another new move the BSFL will kick off the season with two separate sections. Two titles will be up for grabs, firstly in the established Beacon Championship, the other in a new Development division, ideal for newly-formed teams and those just entering 'open age' football. It is also hoped to introduce a new over-30s Seniors section.

Trampolining event is set to tumble in

THE 2018 Trampoline, Tumbling & DMT British Championships springs into action at Arena Birmingham in September. This year the gymnasts gained 13 major medals in the recent European Championships.

Spectators could witness the return of history-making trampoline Olympic Silver Medallist Bryony Page on home soil, as she takes on stiff competition from world team bronze medallists Laura Gallagher and Kat Driscoll.

Nathan Bailey and Luke Strong will go head to head for the men's senior trampoline crown during the event on September 22 and 23. The senior tumbling teams led by 2018 European champion Lucie Colebeck, and her teammates Yasmin Taite, Kristof Willerton, Greg Townley and Elliott Browne will show off their power and skill.

DMT gymnasts will bring their explosive power and high-flying stunts in a bid for the British titles. The newly-crowned Junior European team champions and individual senior gold medallist Kirsty Way will be looking to edge out the competition.

Memorial match for ex academy coach JP

FORMER Wolves academy coach John Perkins is to be honoured with a special memorial game tomorrow (Friday).

Perkins (aka JP) worked at Molineux from 2000-2009 as assistant academy manager and under-18s coach and was in charge when Wolves' talented youngsters reached the semi-finals of the FA Youth Cup in 2005.

Wolves U23s will play at Hinckley's Leicester Road FC (who play in the Midland Football League), kick off 7.30pm for The John Perkins Memorial Trophy. The match has been organised by Leicester Road FC manager Neil Lyne, who as a young semi-pro player with Leicester United also signed for Nottingham Forest with John Perkins in 1989 (when Brian Clough first recognised JP's unique coaching talents) and remained a very close friend.

JP died in October 2016, aged 69, following a short illness and at the time was senior academy coach at (then) Premiership Stoke City FC.

Wolves sporting director Kevin Thelwell explains: "John was a huge part of the development plan we had here at Wolves."

It's no half measures for DK runners

IT was a tale of the trails at the weekend for runners from Dudley Kingswinford Running Club with opportunities to race over the half marathon distance of 13.1 miles over two tough courses and take in some stunning scenery. Despite that only a handful took the opportunity to pull on the blue hoops possibly put off by the sweltering hot weather and the difficulties of the two courses.

The weekend kicked off with the Eastridge Trail Half Marathon. Set in the Shropshire countryside the course covered an undulating route over trails and tracks around Eastridge woods and up to the Stiperstones Ridge. With 2,324 feet of ascent this is certainly one that could leave runners on their hands and knees at some point during the race.

Steve Holdcroft was the only representative from DK on the day coming home in an impressive 91.15, some way behind the winner Jez Brown of Buckley RC, who claimed victory in 87.42 but a similar distance of the third place finisher, Stuart Smith of Shropshire Shufflers in 94.47.

Twenty four hours later runners were presented with a similar option in the Wyre Forest Half Marathon, again a tough, undulating race over fire tracks and trails through the forest culminating with a nightmare of an uphill finish. Helen Tromans was first back for the hoops taking 27th place overall, sixth lady and claiming first in her age group in 1.44.46 and Carol Fisher completed the trio of weekend racers coming home in 88th place in 2.07.10.

Stourbridge hammer Old Elizabethans with eye on the title

STOURBRIDGE appear to be cruising towards the Division Three title after they hammered Old Elizabethans by 172 runs.

They piled up 329-5 at Amblecote with opening batsman Juhar Johal scoring 91 before being bowled by Alex Bastable.

The visitors managed to minimise early damage to the run rate by taking the wickets of Dominic O'Reilly (four), Matt Bradley (28), and Marvarick Perry (32). But they failed to break sixth wicket partnership of 129 between Nathan Crudeli and skipper Josh Banks. Nathan Crudeli came to the crease at 144-3 and proceeded to smash an undefeated 121 from 74 balls, including 16 boundaries and three sixes.

Banks was caught in the closing overs off Bastable for 33 by that time run rate doubled to six an over. Stour went on to build a score of 329 for 5 off the 55 overs.

OE's were dismissed for 157 with Crudeli picking up 4-21.

The 24 points put Stour at the top with 200 points followed by Rugby in second spot on 163 points.

Family fun in the sun at tennis club

AS Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Club opened its doors to the top players, Wollaston Tennis Club members competed for their annual Jubilee Trophy.

With temperatures warmer than Majorca, nine couples competed in a mixed handicap tournament to try to get their name on the club's coveted silver salver.

This year's tournament saw several husbands and wives entering as well as club treasurer Mike White and his daughter Emily. This all added to the occasion together with the flags flying as everyone supported England in the World Cup too!

Matches took place over a three hour period in sweltering temperatures and were competitive, fun and played in great spirit.

The final was between club chairman Alan Hughes and first time finalist Claire Ashman against Chris Brown and Sarah Needs. In a tense match Chris and Sarah came out on top meaning that the trophy was won by two members who weren't actually born when the first event took place.

Tournament organiser John Cutler said "It was great to see so many members taking part on such a hot afternoon. This annual tournament has run since 1977 and is always well supported."

Wollaston has four men's teams and three ladies' teams which play in both Hereford and Worcester and Staffordshire leagues.

SEN CROWNED CRUISER KING

MATT Sen claimed the British Cruiserweight title in only his fourth professional fight on Saturday evening.

The 30-year-old former bodybuilder, who made his professional just debut 12 months ago, came back from the brink to defeat Wolverhampton's Josh Burke in dramatic style in the top-of-the-bill bout at The Venue, Dudley, at BCB Promotions' 'Usual Suspects' show.

After a cagey opener, Burke found his rhythm. Working off a strong jab, it seemed the 32-year-old couldn't miss with his right hand catching Sen with a number of well-timed shots. He continued to box with confidence in the third and there appeared to only be one winner.

However, that all changed in a split second. Midway through the fourth, Burke stalked Sen with his guard lowered. Sen hit back with peach of a right to the chops which dazed Burke and, after an onslaught of clubbing right hands, referee Kevin Parker waved off the contest.

Unbeaten

Sen had just enough energy to raise his hands in victory as he had dug deep to claim the win, the belt, and maintain his unbeaten start to life as a professional boxer.

Kirstie Bavington bounced back from a draw on her debut to claim a close 39-38 victory over Irish debutant, Elaine Greenan. Fellow Richie Ghent trained fighters Josh Miller, Connor Lee Jones and Danny Ball all claimed points victories over Lewis Van Poetsch, Kristian Laight and Danny Little respectively. Daryl Pearce made a winning start in the paid ranks as he overcame Plymouth's Mohamed Mahmoud 39-37.

Reaching cup finals is a stroll

Dudley-based Hartshill Strollers Over 65s team beat Birmingham 3-1 to reach the national final HARTSHILL Strollers Club have won through to the regional finals of a major walking football trophy - twice.

The Dudley club's Over 65s team beat Birmingham WFC 3-1 in the Walking Football Association National Cup 2018 - just nine days after their Over 60s won 1-0, also against Birmingham. Both regional finals will be held in August. Their opponents have yet to be decided. The winners will go through to the Grand Finals in September.

The WFA National Cup is walking football's most prestigious tournament. Hartshill's Over 60s won the trophy in 2016.

This year they overcame Birmingham with a goal by midfielder Steve Nicholls. The super-veterans won with two goals from striker Richard Delahaye and one from Graham Crew.
